Page: Financial District Movers' Neighborhood Guide & Infographic

Giving you the inside scoop on all the neighborhoods in New York!

Situated on the southern tip of Manhattan, the Financial District, including Battery Park City, Wall Street, and South Street Seaport is home to almost 40,000 New Yorkers. FiDi, along with Greenwich Village and SoHo & TriBeCa to the north, comprises the 6th largest statistical area in Manhattan. This southernmost Manhattan neighborhood is known as the world's financial epicenter thanks to the New York Stock Exchange and the rest of the Wall Street institutions. Once just a place for doing business, the Financial District has experienced explosive growth in the last decade as more and more people move into the area. Today, towering high-rises and new construction sit just blocks from some of the most upscale restaurants and shops you'll find south of the Upper East Side.

The Financial District is located on southern edge of Manhattan, between the Hudson and East Rivers, south of Vesey St. and the Brooklyn Bridge. Whether you prefer public transit, walking, or riding a bike to your destination, you won't have problems getting around this neighborhood or to other parts of the city. Numerous subway lines crisscross the neighborhood, including the Lexington Avenue Express on the 4 line and the Broadway-7th Avenue Local on the 1 line. There are also several bus routes, and the Staten Island Ferry takes riders across New York Harbor to Staten Island for free.

This historic neighborhood hosts several notable landmarks, including the 9/11 Tribute Museum, a moving memorial to the victims of the terrorist attacks at the World Trade Center that occurred on September 11th, 2001. Guided tours and three floors of exhibits educate visitors about the tragic events of that day, as well as the earlier World Trade Center bombing that occurred on February 26th, 1993.

The Staten Island Ferry is a living slice of New York City transit history; an extensive ferry network once transported people to and from Manhattan and its future boroughs before the bridges existed. Today, approximately 22 million people a year still ride the ferry.

Just west of the Staten Island Ferry terminal, Battery Park is one of Manhattan's oldest parks. This 25-acre park offers visitors plenty to do: an urban farm educates both residents and visitors about sustainable farming, the Seaglass Carousel, a collection of 30 fiberglass fish, transports riders through a mystical, "undersea" world, and the Perennial Gardens offer a reprieve from the hustle and bustle of Wall Street.

In the heart of FiDi sits Trinity Church, a parish church connected to the Episcopal Diocese of New York. Built in the Gothic Revival style, the church has been a part of New York City history for well over 300 years. Visitors may attend one of the daily worship services or take a tour of the historic building and grounds.

When many people think of Wall Street, they think of the busy trading floor of the New York Stock Exchange (NYSE). It is the world's largest stock exchange, with an average daily trading value of $169 billion as of 2013. The NYSE lists over 2,300 companies from around the world. While the Exchange is no longer open for public visitors, you can get your financial fill at the nearby Museum of American Finance or the Federal Reserve Bank of New York.

When they're not buying and selling stocks, or relaxing in Battery Park, residents of the Financial District are dining at the neighborhood's many excellent restaurants. Luke's Lobster is a local hot spot for authentic lobster rolls, made with lemon butter and mayonnaise. Both Wall Street suits and casual diners head to Adrienne's Pizzabar for lunch, where they enjoy thin-crust pizza while dining alfresco on Stone Street. At Antica Ristorante, the entrees are "solid" and so is the service. For special occasions, locals make Harry's Café & Steakhouse their go-to; there is a wide variety of appetizers, mouthwatering steak options, and unlimited mimosas during the weekend brunch hours. Fishmarket Restaurant offers Asian fusion cuisine in a dive bar setting, making it a local favorite for casual dinners.

To maintain their impeccable physiques, locals head to some of the neighborhood's best gyms. Complete Body Fitness is an all-in-one workout destination, complete with a juice bar for a post-workout boost. Physique 57 is a barre studio founded by Jennifer Vaughan Maanavi, a former Wall Street professional who turned to fitness training when her favorite fitness studio closed. Church Street Boxing Gym is a no-frills boxing gym focused on delivering serious results; they offer a mix of classes and one-on-one training in boxing, Muay Thai, and kickboxing boxing styles. At Sculpt New York, locals work one-on-one with former musician and dancer Matthew Cole to improve their flexibility and get seriously toned. Nearby, Just Train is a boutique gym where locals are paired with a personal trainer to develop better exercise habits.

To make it through long days on the trading floor or working in real estate, Financial District locals rely upon the area's best coffee shops for their caffeine fix. PROOF Coffee Roasters has garnered fierce loyalty from locals who swear by the shop's flaky, buttery almond croissants and lattes. The Fulton Street subway stop houses Voyager Espresso. True to the shop's name, the décor is futuristic, and the baristas serve up lattes in science-lab-style beakers. In the afternoon, locals go to La Colombe Coffee for a post-lunch caffeine boost: the draft latte draws lines that wrap around the block. R & R Coffee has ample seating and a laid-back atmosphere; it's a prime choice for locals coming to meet with friends in an informal setting. Laughing Man Coffee & Tea has a big claim to fame: it's owned by actor Hugh Jackman, and all profits go to charity. Despite the impressive backstory, it is a sweet, unassuming spot to relax with a hot cup of joe.

After the day's work is over, you'll spot Financial District locals wining and dining at the neighborhood's best watering holes. A traditional Irish bar, the Dead Rabbit, has three floors, offering patrons a different bar experience on each one. Expect crowds at the first-floor Taproom, where locals come to fill up on pints of Guinness and nosh on the Sunday Prime Rib Roast. For cocktails, those in-the-know head to the Parlor on floor 2, while those seeking solace can rent out the private-event room on the top floor. The owners of the Dead Rabbit also manage Blacktail, a bar with a 1940s retro feel and an impressive menu of cocktails to boot.

On Cliff Street, the Iron Horse is a lively dive bar with an over-the-bar saddle-swing that lures guests to ride after a drink or two. Clinton Hall is a small German beer garden with big pretzels and life-size games like giant chess. Vintry Wine and Whiskey is located between some of the noisier pubs on Stone Street, but the atmosphere inside is decidedly quieter with low lighting, comfortable leather seats, and an array of wine and whiskey options that invite you to linger.

Financial District is both a bustling financial hub and a residential catch. Convenient transportation, busy people, a reasonably-priced rental market, and fun attractions like South Street Seaport, CompleteBody Gym and a Brooklyn Bridge make FiDi a great neighborhood.” – Oleksiy Melnyk, Digital Marketing Strategist – CompleteBody Gym Being able to walk around. Battery Park is small but lovely with views of the water and the city. You can look out from the piers and see not much at all, or look in to the Financial District and see Freedom Tower and the Oculus. Financial District is a great combination of the chaos and beauty of New York City.” – Rebekkah Dooley, Marketing Director – The Dead Rabbit

I love how people are starting to live in the Financial District instead of just working there, and as a result, so many interesting businesses are opening up.” – Prudence Reid, Owner – Voyager Espresso

I have loved personally witnessing the way Financial District (now becoming known as Lower Manhattan) has changed over the course of even the last few years. It is primed to become — and in fact is already becoming — a thriving hub for more cultural, hip, and experiential goings-on; from new restaurants and coffee shops, to new headquarters for creative and tech companies in NYC, the area is experiencing an overhaul like none other, which is truly exciting.” – Jeff Sale, Founder & CEO – PROOF Coffee Roasters

The Financial District is a great part of Manhattan. It is littered with the essence of Old Time New York, which is on display in the architecture and winding narrow streets, but also seamlessly fused with our modern city. It has a bit of everything for local residents, the weekday workforce and wide eyed tourists passing through. Also a great place to grab a Maine Style Lobster Roll!” – Jeremy Kirchmer, General Manager – Luke’s Lobster FiDi – Luke’s Lobster

The financial district embodies the definition of a neighborhood. It’s friendly, personable, and has a strong sense of camaraderie. ” – Laura Torres, General Manager – BlackTail Bar NYC

Small doorways, narrow staircases, and limited street parking: moving to the Financial District can be a challenge. For reliable and thorough movers, contact Imperial Moving & Storage. Page: Washington Heights Movers' Neighborhood Guide & Infographic

Giving you the inside scoop on all the neighborhoods in New York!

Ranked as the 2nd most populous neighborhood in Manhattan, Washington Heights (including Marble Hill & Inwood), is home to just over 201,000 New Yorkers. Though you would never guess it now, at the time of the American Revolution, this northernmost stretch of Manhattan was largely rural and uninhabited. It was here that George Washington and his men constructed Fort Washington to defend against the British forces, the area's hilly topography offering the ideal vantage point to keep an eye out for the Red Coats. Decades after America won its independence, wealthy New York residents began building opulent mansions and estates on the land, making it a playground for the elite. In the 1900s, as the overcrowded streets of lower Manhattan inched north, immigrant populations started moving into the area and estates were replaced with rows of tenement buildings and storefronts. First came the Irish, followed by the Greeks, then Germans, and in more recent decades, an influx of Dominicans, all of whom helped shape a neighborhood rich in culture and diversity.

Washington Heights sits at the northern tip of Manhattan, just above Harlem at W. 155th Street. Though once reputed as one of the roughest neighborhoods in the city, Washington Heights is now one of the safest with fewer than 1.1034 crimes per 1000 residents (check out the current crime rate for the 34th precinct). Today, Washington Heights is better known for its spacious apartments, more affordable rents, and Dominican flair. An increasingly popular area among students and young professionals, the neighborhood is also notable for incredible ethnic cuisine, beautiful greenspaces, and easy commuting. Just hop the southbound A, C, or 1 trains, and you'll be in Midtown in under 30 minutes.

While the rest of Manhattan's hills were leveled during development, Washington Heights retains much of its natural landscape. The former site of Fort Washington, Bennett Park boasts the highest point on the island (at 265 feet above sea level), denoted by a metal plaque at the top of a small rock outcropping usually overrun by children at play. Less than a mile up the road, on the bank of the Hudson River, sits the 67-acre Fort Tryon Park. Gifted to the City by John D. Rockefeller, Jr., this beautiful park features a huge public garden, 8 miles of running trails, playgrounds, and the Cloisters, a division of the Metropolitan that houses medieval art. Meander down the Hudson River Greenway to the adjacent Fort Washington Park, and you'll find the historic Little Red Lighthouse tucked under the George Washington Bridge. Other notable neighborhood landmarks include the Inwood Hill Park, home to the City's only remaining forest, and the Audubon Terrace, a cluster of Beaux-Arts buildings named after famed former resident of Washington Heights, John Audubon.

When Washington Heights residents aren't lounging on park benches overlooking the Hudson, you'll likely find them noshing on ethnic cuisine at one of the neighborhood's many eateries. For Italian food, locals love Saggio, which is known for its intimate atmosphere and spectacular Southern Italian dishes (calamari and salmon are popular orders). Up on Broadway, Marcha Cocina, a Spanish-style tapas bar, opened its doors in 2013, but quickly became a neighborhood staple with delightful entrees and a generous happy hour. For a burger, locals head to one of the two Burger Heights locations, where the traditional hamburger is gussied up with farm-fresh ingredients from local purveyors. In Inwood, the cozy and unassuming Beans & Vines offers personable service, an extensive wine selection, and impressive array of small bites (everything from lamb chops to catfish tacos). And, of course, a list of Washington Heights favorites wouldn't be complete without mentioning a Dominican joint; Malecon features hearty helpings of Caribbean entrees like grilled churrasco and garlic rotisserie pollo.

To burn off all those calories consumed at neighborhood eateries, locals sweat it out at nearby gyms. Lucille Roberts is "The Women's Gym" and has with several locations scattered throughout the greater New York metro area. The Washington Heights location, at 1387 St. Nicholas Avenue, offers a variety of engaging group fitness classes including Zumba, Kickboxing, and Body Shred to help members slim down and trim up. Less than half a mile away, Hudson Pilates offers traditional reformer Pilates classes, as well as tower, mat, and a handful of other Pilates classes all geared towards helping clients build long, lean muscle. Farther north in Inwood, PRX offers clients a boutique fitness experience. Many members initially get hooked with the PRX14 program – a two-week program with daily 2.5-hour workouts designed to get drastic results quickly – while others enjoy staying in shape with the gym’s other classes which include cycling, box and sculpt, and a lower body leg blast. For a calmer, more tranquil workout, Washington Heights residents pull on their yoga pants and head over to MindBodySoul Yoga Studio. Located just across from the J Hood Wright Park, this yoga complex offers classes that help students focus on building strength and flexibility while shedding anxiety and stress. Last, but not least, the popular YM & YWHA of Washington Heights and Inwood has a 2500-square-foot fitness center replete with free weights, weight machines, and the latest cardio equipment, plus locker rooms, fitness classes, and youth programs.

If you can’t do without your morning caffeine jolt, Washington Heights has plenty of coffee shops to choose from. Darling Coffee, in Inwood, is a cheerful spot to enjoy a cup of Plowshares Coffee Roasters’ best along with a fresh pastry or sandwich. Close by, G’s Coffee Shop offers far more than just coffee; along with a just-brewed cup of joe, you can also order from a smorgasbord of breakfast items, sandwiches, and even Mexican eats. Down in Hudson Heights, Café Buunni sells its own micro roasted Ethiopian blends sourced from small localized farms, all certified organic and fair trade. Not too far away, Filtered Coffee, which has three NYC locations, put up a pop-up shop that was wildly successful. (Note, the shop is temporarily closed as developers transform the building into the neighborhood’s first food hall.) In the meantime, Taszo Espresso Bar, just north of Audubon Terrace, is a relaxed place to enjoy a morning espresso or unwind after a long day with a cold craft beer.

After the sun sets, the warm glow of neighborhood bars beckons thirsty passersby to stop in for a drink (or two). Just east of Fort Tyron Park, the aptly named Tyron Public House is an Inwood favorite known as a craft beer and cocktail destination, while the nearby Inwood Local boasts a welcoming interior, an outdoor beer garden, and well-priced eats and drinks. For the winos, the Corcho Wine Room, just down the street, offers an extensive wine list and tempting tapas in an intimate atmosphere.

Down in Washington Heights, locals love Le Chéile, an eclectic Irish pub in the shadow of the George Washington Bridge that offers twelve beers on tap plus a fantastic selection of wines, spirits, and hearty eats. Kazza Wine Bar has daily happy hour from 4 p.m. – 8 p.m., and its sangria and hummus are real crowd pleasers.

Best part of the neighborhood are the people-single and families, young and old -diverse, inclusive and creative.” – Victoria Neznansky, Chief Program Officer – YM & YWHA

I love the blend of old and new that being uptown offers. You have that old sense of community and rich cultural backgrounds, mixed with young professionals bringing new ideas and businesses.” – Edson A. Familia, Owner – Beans & Vines

We have a sense of community here that feels like living in a small town in the big city. It’s easy to talk to and get to know people.” – Sarina Prabasi, Co-Founder – Cafe Buunni

Local, friendly, reliable, hard-working, caring, & honest movers in New Jersey!

What makes New Jersey a great state to call home? Aside from offering a quieter alternative to living in the hustle and bustle of NYC or Philly, the Garden State is a truly diverse place. From beautiful natural spaces (sunny beaches, mountainous terrain, and beautiful countryside) to the spirited people and renowned food (fresh produce, bagels, and pizza), there's a plethora of experiences and opportunities waiting for discovery. The state may be tiny, but it offers well-rounded living!

On this page, you will find an overview of things to know before moving to New Jersey, the top eight places to live in, a comprehensive relocation checklist, and a rundown of Imperial Moving & Storage's affordable New Jersey moving services. We hope that armed with this info you'll be able to carefully examine your options and make the best choices for yourself and those relocating with you.

Ready to call the Garden State home? If so, it's time to explore what to expect when living in NJ. With its 8,723 square miles and a population of 8.9 million, this beautifully diverse state offers big living in a small package. Enjoy proximity to New York City and Philly, open spaces and sunny shore towns, and more!

While many consider it a wonderful place to live, life in the Garden State isn't always rosy. Here are some of the pros and cons of calling NJ home:

* In 2019, the top marginal rate will increase to 10.75% for earnings over $5 million.

In most U.S. housing markets (almost 60%), it's become more affordable to rent a house compared to buying one. The unaffordability of home buying can be chalked up to rising interests, rents, tax laws, and lower income, among other factors. With median home values in some areas reaching close to a million dollars, more New Jersians are renting than ever. Though the statewide median home value is $327,000 (having risen 4.6% year over year), many places are well above the $500,000 mark. Ridgewood, for instance, has a median home price of $739,000, while Princeton is a whopping $916,000. Of course, how much you can expect to pay for housing depends on which part of the state you plan on living in.

Are you looking to rent in New Jersey? According to an article published by New Jersey 101.5, the average two-bedroom NJ apartment costs $1,460/month. To afford this rent, someone must earn an hourly wage of $26/hour or higher. The five most expensive places to rent include Hunterdon County, Middlesex County, Somerset County, Bergen County, and Passaic County (with an average rent of $1,652). Conversely, the five cheapest places are Ocean City, Cape May County, Vineland-Bridgeton, Cumberland County, and Warren County (with an average rent of $1,158 for a two-bedroom apartment). Even though the rent might sound expensive, when compared with NYC rental prices, New Jersey's rent seems like a steal!

So, how does New Jersey's living costs compare to the rest of the country? Well, for starters, it had a cost of living index of 122.5 in 2018. This index earned the state the rank of 41st most expensive state in the nation. By comparison, Missouri had the lowest index at 88.8, while Hawaii had the highest at 190.1.

Using the Family Budget Calculator, we can take a look at the budget data for a specific city. For example, Jersey City's monthly break down for a family of two adults and two children comes out to: $1,614 for housing, $802 for food, $1,635 in childcare, $653 for transportation, $1,125 for health care, $975 for other necessities, and $1,075 in taxes, for a total of $7,878/month. Of course, numbers will vary according to your situation and location. Check out the Family Calculator for your desired city to see what you can expect.

You will find two distinct climates in the Garden State. The northeast, central, and southern parts of New Jersey experience a humid subtropical climate which makes for hot, humid summers with mild to cold winters. The other is a humid continental climate in the northwest, which means cooler temperatures (relatively milder summers, frigid winters) at higher elevations. Statewide, temperatures average between 65 and 85 °F during summer and between 20 and 40 °F during winter.

As far as significant weather events, the most common are severe snowstorms which can bring everything to a halt, including highways and airports. New Jersey also experiences Nor'easters – an extratropical cyclone that develops in the North Atlantic Ocean and typically brings heavy rainfall, heavy snowfall, flooding, hurricane-level winds, and blizzards – during winter and early spring. Other natural disasters, such as tornadoes, earthquakes, hurricanes and tropical storms, are typically rare. In general, many parts of New Jersey have four distinct seasons.

According to Business Insider, New Jersey's economy ranks 28th among states with a GDP of 510.6 billion dollars and a GDP per capita of nearly $70,000 (#11th highest). The average resident earns a weekly wage of approximately $1,020 (#7th highest). Top industries across the Garden State include:

Major employers include:

New Jersey's unemployment rate is slightly lower than New York's but higher than the unemployment rate across the U.S.

The Garden State utilizes a mixture of road (US highways, toll roads, country routes, bridges, tunnels, and mass transit), air (commercial and non-commercial airports), rail (PATH, PATCO, New Jersey Transit, and Amtrak), and water transportation (ferry). Wedged between Philly and New York City, NJ is a major corridor.

New Jersey is home to numerous thoroughfares. These include: I-76, I-78, I-80, I-95, I-195, I-278, I-280, I-287, I-295, I-495, I-676, I-695, and I-895. The main thoroughfare is the New Jersey Turnpike. As for traffic, it depends on the part of New Jersey, but generally, the most congested traffic is in northern New Jersey. Of note, New Jersey is considered to have some of the worst drivers and road quality in the US.

Looking for fun? New Jersey has no shortage of entertainment options. Check out these recommendations:

New Jersey consistently ranks as one of America's top states for public education. According to USA Today, it has the second best high school graduation rate (90.1%) and the sixth highest per-pupil spending ($16,337 per pupil) in the country.

Top 5 School Districts:

Not to be outdone, higher education in the Garden State is home to 31 universities and four-year colleges. Several are among the best schools in the country and world. Additionally, there are 19 two-year county colleges.

Top 5 Universities:

To become a New Jersey resident, you'll first need to move to the state, establish an address, and acquire a new driver's license (refer below for detailed info). You won't be able to participate in most community activities without establishing residency. Additionally, you'll need to live in the state for 12 months or longer to attend a public university and qualify for in-state tuition.

Moving to New Jersey MVC

Here's an overview of some of the top communities in the Garden State, broken down by region.

Population: 270,000

Median Home Value: $483,000

Jersey City, located in northeastern New Jersey in Hudson County, is the second most populated city in the state. Living here offers both an urban vibe and convenience for those that frequently visit or work in NYC (Midtown Manhattan, for example, is just 20 minutes away). It's so close to New York City that many New Yorkers consider it the "sixth borough." Currently ranked #2 most diverse city in the nation – it was #1 three times in four years between – the city has its own spirit that plays center stage in New Jersey's most vibrant region.

Home to a melting pot of families and youthful professionals that tend to be more liberal, the city offers great places to live and excellent public education. Top neighborhoods include Waterfront, Historic Downtown, Journal Square, and Hackensack River Waterfront. Top public schools include Dr. Ronald E. McNair Academic High School, Ballet Tech, Soaring Heights, and County Prep High School.

Finding affordable housing can be a challenge, leading most residents to rent. As for transportation, there are several options, including Port Authority of New York & New Jersey (PATH), ferry services, the NJ Transit bus system, and miles of bike paths. The city also offers a varied selection of restaurants, coffee shops, bars, and parks. With the right balance of suburbia and city, it melds relatively less hectic living with the amenities of a metropolis.

If you're looking for a diverse, urban feel that's super close to the Big Apple, look no further than Jersey City.

Population: 55,000

Median Home Value: $711,000

Also located in Hudson County, Hoboken is the #1 pick for young professionals looking for relatively affordable living (compared to NYC), proximity to Manhattan, and a lively nightlife. Birthplace of Frank Sinatra, this small suburb of 1.5 square miles packs a big punch.

Located along the Hudson River, Mile Square City is clean and family-friendly (and perfect for walking and people sans cars). The majority of housing consists of condos and townhouses, and nearly two-thirds of its residents rent. Again, like its neighbor Jersey City, the people here are more liberal.

Top public schools include Hoboken Dual Language Charter School, Elysian Charter School, Hoboken Charter School, and Wallace Elementary School. Manhattan is just a short ride away (10 minutes or so) via PATH, ferry, or bus.

As for nightlife, Hoboken is known for its dining scene and places to drink. Popular establishments include La Isla, Karma Kafe, Johnny Pepperoni, Pilsener Haus & Biergarten, Brass Rail, and Cork City. The charming city has quaint little streets with an increasingly diverse selection of restaurants, bookstores, bakeries, small businesses, parks, coffee shops popping up along the beautiful waterfront.

If you're an ambitious young person looking for work/life balance, but not wanting to travel to New York City every to you want to go out, Hoboken should be at the top of your list.

Population: 285,000

Median Home Value: $256,000

As the most populous city in New Jersey, Newark offers a great combination of urban living with a smaller population, lighter traffic, lower cost of living, greener spaces, and a close commute to the Big Apple. Also known as Brick City, it offers a wide range of neighborhoods, from peaceful suburban enclaves to active urban districts.

As a major hub for shipping, air, and rail, Newark is home to several major companies. These include Panasonic, Manischewitz, Prudential, Audible.com, PSEG, and IDT Corporation. It also offers several of the top schools in the country, including Rutgers University, Seton Hall University's law school, and the New Jersey Institute of Technology.

As for culture, the city is home to several venues such as Newark Symphony Hall, Prudential Center, Newark Museum, and the New Jersey Performing Arts Center. Attractions and historical sites include the Cathedral Basilica of The Sacred Heart, Thomas Edison National Historical Park, the Jewish Museum of New Jersey, Alice and Leonard Dreyfuss Planetarium, and Newark Museum. And if you're a fan of restaurants, bars, coffee shops, and parks, you'll be happy to know that Newark has an assorted variety!

Though not regarded as the safest place to live, Newark communities have taken great strides to improve its reputation. Those looking for a quieter urban environment with great job opportunities, nightlife, arts scene, education, and more spacious living should consider Newark as your next home.

Recently voted the best place to live in Bergen County (and the 6th best place in the state), Ridgewood presents a refreshing alternative to fast-paced living with its suburban atmosphere. A more conservative and close-knit area, most residents are homeowners. With the public school system among the best in the state, this suburb of NJ draws many families.

Major thoroughfares that travel through Ridgewood include Franklin Turnpike, New Jersey Route 17, County 507, and County Route 84. Public transportation consists of the Bergen County Line and the NJ Transit Line. There are nine primary neighborhoods: Downtown, Scrabbletown, The Old Country Club, The Heights, Upper Ridgewood, Salem Ridge, Floral Park, Brookside, and The Lawns.

Top public schools include Ridgewood High School, Travell Elementary School, Hawes Elementary School, and Orchard Elementary School. There's a strong sense of community, and residents enjoy an extremely low crime rate. Ridgewood has hot, humid summers and relatively mild winters. Clean, safe and walkable, the suburb offers a wide variety of arts & culture, parks & recreation (Graydon Park, Veterans Field, Citizen Park, and Ridgewood Wild Duck Pond), top-rated restaurants, nightlife, coffee shops, supermarkets, ice cream shops, shopping malls, and movie theaters.

If you have the means, Ridgewood is a great place to escape urban stress and raise a family.

Lauded as the crown jewel of New Jersey by many, Princeton offers the best of academia, history, and culture mixed with superb, small-town living. Moderate in political views, the esteemed town is home to many young professionals.

Princeton gets top marks in multiple categories: public education, nightlife, safety, diversity, and transportation. Aside from being home to Princeton University, the public schools are exceptional. Examples include Princeton High School, Princeton Charter School, Littlebrook Elementary School, J. Witherspoon Middle School, and Riverside Elementary School. Transit comes in the form of TigerTransit shuttles, NJ

Transit system (buses and trains), BikeShares, CarShares, Amtrak, and the Trenton Line.

The town experiences frigid winters and humid summers. Crime is low, and people feel safe when out walking. Coupled with an assorted variety of dining (Middle Eastern, Mediterranean, Latin American, Asian, and other cuisines), shopping (Downtown Princeton), arts & culture (McCarter Theatre Center, Morven Museum & Garden, and Princeton Garden Theatre), pubs, coffee houses, and outdoor activities (nature gazing, hiking, biking, canoeing), Princeton has the ingredients for a high quality of life. It does, however, fall short when it comes to housing affordability with a median home value $916,000. Nonetheless, most residents in this upper-crust community own their homes.

Living here comes at a premium, but to those that have fallen for its charms, Princeton is unparalleled.

Population: 102,000

Median Home Value: $386,000

Situated in Middlesex County, Edison is a township that's consistently ranked as one of the best places to live in the Garden State. And yes, it's named after Thomas Edison.

With several major businesses and companies in the area, including Johnson & Johnson and John F. Kennedy Medical Center, the city enjoys a low unemployment rate. Public education is excellent, with several topnotch schools such as J.P. Stevens High School, Middlesex County Academy, Woodrow Wilson Middle School, Menlo Park Elementary School, and Jon Adams Middle School.

As a somewhat secluded suburb, it has its pros and cons. People who enjoy quiet suburban living love it here. If you don't have a vehicle, however, it can be challenging to get around. Activities are limited, but if you have access to a car, you're a short drive from a variety of attractions and things to do. Considered safe and serene, with high diversity and a low cost of living, Edison is a great place to live for both growing families and single professionals.

As a suburb of Philadelphia, Cherry Hill Township offers another great suburban vibe for people looking to get away from urban life. With moderate political views overall, growing families, young professionals, and retirees make this Camden County suburb their home.

Cherry Hill sees mild winters and long, hot summers. It can be affected by tropical storms coming from the Atlantic. As a corporate and employment hub, the area is home to TD Bank's headquarters and the Melitta USA coffee roasting plant. Many residents commute to work elsewhere, though.

Highly ranked public schools here include Cherry Hill School East, Joseph D. Sharp Elementary School, Rosa International Middle School, Richard Stockton Elementary School, and A. Russell Elementary School. If you like parks (over 50 of them!), restaurants and coffee shops, this is your kind of place. Known as a safe town, crime and incidents of racism are low.

Family-friendly and affordable with a relaxing environment, Cherry Hill Township offers a small-town feel while being only 10 miles away from Philly.

Population: 14,000

Median Home Value: $246,000

With the motto “it’s where you want to be,” Collingswood deserves serious consideration. As a borough of Camden County, this South Jersey town is only 15 minutes away from Center City. With an urban feel, younger professionals are especially attracted to this top place to live in New Jersey.

Leaning more liberal, most residents (with 44% under the age of 35) are homeowners. The suburb is still inexpensive, especially compared to neighboring towns. Business growth and job opportunities are decent, but most people commute for work. The borough is served by US Route 130 and US Route 30.

Public schools are above average. These include Zane North Elementary School and Collingswood High School. Many residents consider the best things about Collingswood to be its various restaurants, loving community, booming downtown, excellent public education, and proximity to Philadelphia. Favorite local spots include the Collingswood Farmers’ Market, Grooveground Coffee Bar, Zeppoli, Hearthside, and Devil’s Creek Brewery.

If you’re in search of a lively and safe community, Collingswood is worth checking out.

Giving you the inside scoop on all the neighborhoods in New York!

The Upper West Side ranks as Manhattan's third most populous neighborhood, with approximately 200,000 residents. Residents here live in quiet brownstones that look out on Central Park, Manhattan's leafy green playground. Regarded by many as the Upper East Side's younger sister, the Upper West Side attracts everyone from hipsters to Wall Street bankers to its tree-lined and high-priced streets. With a vibrant nightlife and thriving arts scene, along with several of Manhattan's most famous landmarks, the Upper West Side is a great place to call home.

This spacious neighborhood spans the Hudson River to Central Park from W. 59th St. to W. 110th St. An easy spread to navigate, the Upper West Side's proximity to everything makes venturing to other parts of the city a breeze. According to walkscore.com, the area gets great marks for walkability and transit, scoring a 98 and 99 in these categories, respectively. For those looking for the fastest transportation option, public transportation via the subway is your best bet. The neighborhood is served by the blue, orange, and red lines (A, C, B, D, 1, 2, and 3 trains). There are also several bus routes. If you'd rather travel on your own two wheels above ground, the Upper West Side also scores well for bikeability, with a bike score that's 15 points higher than the rest of the city (80 out of 100).

The Upper West Side is home to some of New York City's most prized landmarks, including Riverside Park, which stretches for four incredible miles along the Hudson River. This scenic greenspace is where Upper West Siders come to bike, walk their dogs, or simply take in the water views beneath a canopy of mature elm trees.

At the southern end of the neighborhood, the Lincoln Center is a year-round destination for cultural events and the performing arts. This famed cultural center, the largest of its kind in the world, is home to the New York City Ballet, the Metropolitan Opera, and the New York Philharmonic. It also hosts the Julliard School and the School of American Ballet, two of the most prestigious performing arts schools in the world.

The Upper West Side also doesn't disappoint when it comes to museums. Just across from Central Park, on a 4-block plot between W. 77th Street and W. 81st Street, the American Museum of Natural History is popular with academics and kids alike who come to gape at the museum's impressive collection. If you go for a visit, you'll want to stop to admire the 94-foot Blue Whale replica or pose for a selfie with the painstakingly reconstructed T. Rex. Just a few streets away, at 170 Central Park W., the New-York Historical Society (yes, the hyphen is required) is where tourists come to learn more about the Big Apple and the cultural history of New York State. Enjoy browsing through the collections housed in the museum's Center for Women's History or stroll through special exhibitions like the dazzling Gallery of Tiffany Lamps.

Central Park acts as the Upper West Side's eastern border, and it's well worth spending an afternoon here picnicking with friends, playing catch on the expansive lawns, or simply soaking up the scenery (and people). If you're lucky, you might even spot a movie shoot in progress along the park's winding paths.

When they're not enjoying a ballet performance or relaxing on a bench in Riverside Park, you'll find Upper West Siders taking a bite out of the neighborhood's best restaurants. Locals head to the Milling Room for special occasions, where the kitchen dishes up innovative, upscale twists on American classics in a chic atmosphere. For a quick drink or two, stop in at the restaurant's Tavern, a casual pub at the front of the house that boasts incredible happy hour deals. When a hankering for comfort food strikes, Upper West Siders turn to the gigantic plates of mac 'n' cheese, fried chicken, and fried pickles at Jacob's Pickles. This Southern transplant is also revered for its to-die-for fluffy biscuits and creamy cheese grits; just be sure to make a reservation because this place fills up. When date night demands Asian fare, Sushi Yasaka answers the call. Since 2011, this neighborhood gem has served some of the city's best sushi, along with other traditional Japanese cuisine, in a warm, inviting setting. Those with an appetite for Latin fare or those seeking a different kind of brunch experience should try the unlimited sangrias and Nuevo Latino menu at Calle Ocho, a local mainstay. It's hard to get a reservation here, so make sure to plan ahead. And if lobster rolls or East Coast clams are your thing, then join other seafood-loving Upper East Siders at The Mermaid Inn. The casual setting and intimate atmosphere of this neighborhood staple are perfect for enjoying a dinner with the family or a round of drinks after work (the daily $1 East Coast oysters and drink specials are hard to beat).

UWS locals take their fitness as seriously as they take their food. Physique 57 follows the barre workout trend with small classes and a focus on form, while the conditioning and bootcamp workouts at FIT RxN are guaranteed to leave you both sweaty and sore. Hop on a spin bike at Flywheel Sports for a class that takes you through sprints, climbs, and flat roads to an intense finish. Classes here are big, but the spacious facilities mean you never feel cramped. The Nalini Method, founded by veteran fitness instructor Rupa in 2003, combines the intensity of a barre workout with Pilates, yoga, and strength training for a full-body experience you won't soon forget. Over on W. 85th St., Upper West Side Yoga & Wellness is a small but dedicated yoga studio perfect for those seeking a place to relax and reconnect body and spirit.

Upper West Siders know good coffee. Whether it's a quick cup of joe on the way to work or a mid-workday caffeine boost, there are plenty of coffee shops to choose from. Levain Bakery serves up the best chewy, oversized chocolate walnut cookies in the city; these pair well with the house coffee or a stout glass of cold milk. Joe Coffee, a mini-chain that's local to NYC, serves up carefully curated, fair trade coffee in an unassuming atmosphere. At 2167 Broadway, Beard Papa's is on a mission to deliver the best cream puffs ever – and locals say they more than hit the mark. On Broadway, Mille-Feuille Bakery is a tiny French patisserie with exquisite and decadent desserts. Sit for a bit and enjoy a full-bodied cup of coffee accompanied some of NYC's best French pastries (you can't go wrong with the macarons or the almond croissants). Last, but not least, local loyalists swear by Irving Farm Coffee Roasters for their morning cup. This New York roaster has 11 locations across Manhattan, so no matter where your day takes you, great coffee will always be close by.

When the day winds down and the lights get low, the Upper West Side heats up. If your day at the office has been a drag, there are plenty of fantastic options for a stiff drink. The Dead Poet is a favorite hangout among hipsters; all the specialty drinks are named after poets or famous works of literature (try the Earnest Hemingway for a little dose of Havana). The atmosphere at Shalel Lounge is both intimate and inviting; Upper West Siders come here for the menu of Turkish and Moroccan beers, and stay for the lamb meatballs. Despite the name, Dive Bar is more than just your typical sports bar; the food is just as good as the drinks. George Keeley, at 485 Amsterdam Ave, is a local favorite especially among the craft beer crowd – some regulars have been going for years. And for the winos, the Vanguard Wine Bar is a favorite spot for a glass of wine and some small bites before a show at Lincoln Center.

We reached out to each of the businesses featured above to get their opinions on what they love most about the Upper West Side. Here's what they had to say:

We fell in love with a community that welcomed us with open arms. There's no downtown equivalent because there's no community like the UWS, with its history, intellectual activity, artists and culture. Our goal is to provide a homegrown style of hospitality to the established creative class.” – Jacob Hadjigeorgis, Owner – Jacob's Pickles

I'm a UWS native. It's a joy not only to live in this community (again), but also to support its growth and give back to it. If you're looking to amplify your life, cultivate your practice with us!” – Stephan Kolbert & Ingrid Marcroft, Owners – Upper West Side Yoga and Wellness

I lived on the UWS for 10 years and loved it! It's very warm and friendly. I love to being by Central Park, and there was all the shopping and eating that you need to not have to leave the neighborhood, should you choose!” – Gabrielle Rubinstein, Co-Founder – Joe Coffee

What I love most about the neighborhood is the mix of what we have here. Obviously the park and museum being two blocks away is wonderful. Wonderful restaurants and bars. We're in the greatest city in the world yet the UWS maintains a very neighborhood feel." – John Court, Partner – The Dead Poet

In a big city it's easy to lose a connection to the smaller things. The UWS has a special feel for community and beauty in the small things. Everyone is friendly and works together. There's something beautiful everywhere you look, from the small well appointed parks to the families walking down the sidewalks. We are happy to be nestled in the heart of the UWS." – Team FIT – FIT RxN

We've always loved the tree-lined blocks of brownstones on the Upper West Side and the deep sense of community we feel here." – Connie McDonald & Pam Weekes, Co-Founders – Levain Bakery

What I love most about the Upper West Side is its proximity to Central Park, and how it can really deceive you. It feels quieter and more relaxed than the rest of Manhattan, but when you get to know it, it is a vibrant and energized neighborhood with lots of hidden gems." – Dan Streetman, Green Coffee Buyer – Irving Farm Coffee Roasters

We are not only proud of our deep connection with the community here in the Upper West Side, but we sincerely believe there is no other neighborhood that can compare in charm and allure. It is always nice to receive praise for our space, service, and culinary expertise, however we believe what really makes The Milling Room special is our surrounding Upper West Side location and neighbors." – Samantha Moretti, Managing Partner – The Milling Room

Limited parking, crowded streets, and strict landlords mean moving to the Upper West Side can be a challenge. For a smooth transition, call Imperial Movers. We've been named one of NYC's best movers, offering our moving expertise to Manhattan for over ten years. New York's premier full-service mover, we offer an array of moving services – from residential packing and moving to long-term storage solutions. We want to help your relocation to the Upper West Side be as smooth as possible, from the moment you request a moving quote to the day your boxes get unpacked. Give us a call today to get started!

Page: West Harlem Movers' Neighborhood Guide & Infographic

Giving you the inside scoop on all the neighborhoods in New York!

The stretch of Upper Manhattan wedged between the Upper West Side and Washington Heights is broadly known as West Harlem, but you might be more familiar with the smaller neighborhoods that comprise it: Morningside Heights, Manhattanville, and Hamilton Heights. Morningside Heights, just north of the Upper West Side, is dominated by a smattering of academic institutions (including Columbia University, Barnard College, and the New York Theological Seminary) and overrun by multitudes of college co-eds. Farther north, 19th century brownstones and prewar-era apartments line the avenues of Manhattanville and Hamilton Heights, neighborhoods still greatly influenced by Dominican, Cuban, Puerto Rican, and other Hispanic-speaking immigrants who settled here in droves in the 1980s. More affordable than Manhattan's southerly neighborhoods, West Harlem is a culturally rich area that's increasingly popular as a haven for intellectuals, academics, and artists.

Though many NYC guides lump Morningside Heights in with the Upper West Side, official city maps indicate that the area north of Central Park (110th Street) is part of Harlem. For our purposes, West Harlem spans from the Hudson River to Morningside Drive/St. Nicholas Avenue between W. 110th Street and W. 155th Street. This narrow swath of Manhattan is bordered by the Upper West Side to the South, Central Harlem to the East, and Washington Heights to the North. Noted for its excellent walkability (walkscore.com gives it a 96/100), West Harlem also has impressive public transportation options. Residents can choose one of the many bus lines or hop the 1, A, B, C, or D trains to easily get around.

The best-known West Harlem landmark might be Riverside Park, which spans four miles of waterfront along the Hudson River. Residents come here for sport and socialization – whether that means jogging along the hike and bike paths, launching kayaks out of the 79th Street Marina, or playing fierce games of tennis on one of the park's ten courts. At the northern end of the park sits the General Grant National Memorial, a monument and mausoleum built to honor Ulysses S. Grant, who served as the Commanding General of the Union Army during the Civil War, then later as the 18th President of the United States. Farther north, the 28-acre, multi-level Riverbank State Park offers Hamilton Heights residents easy access to myriad activities and amenities, including swimming, skating, fitness facilities, sport courts, a softball field, and playgrounds.

While West Harlem's lush greenspaces and parks are undoubtedly a huge draw, the neighborhood also has incredible buildings and architecture, including the Cathedral Church of St. John the Divine, a massive Gothic Revival church started in 1892 that is still under construction today. Close by, the primary Columbia University campus sits on a 32-acre plot filled with Beaux-Arts architecture, a grand neoclassical library, and several buildings listed on the National Register of Historic Places.

Though long revered as a soul food destination, in recent years, Harlem has really stepped into the culinary spot light thanks to its increasingly diverse and impressive food scene. Though it might be a chain, Dinosaur Bar-B-Que, with a location on W. 125th Street, gets loads of rave reviews for its pulled pork, fried green tomatoes, and other Southern-style offerings. Up on Broadway, the Harlem outpost of Jin Ramen (which also has a location on the Upper West Side) dishes up slurp-able bowls of soul-warming ramen, while the nearby Handpulled Noodle serves traditional hand-crafted noodles made in the style of the Xinjiang region in Northwest China. For those craving some hearty Italian, neighborhood favorite Pisticci, with its cozy vibe and homespun fare, always delivers. Right on the fringe of Columbia's campus, Flat Top, a rustic American eatery, gets the nod for its dressed up take on classic dishes like the Flat Top Burger (organic Angus topped with aioli and a beefsteak tomato), New England Lobster Roll, and Three Mushroom Risotto.

If you need motivation to torch some calories, just jump into a local group fitness class. In Hamilton Heights, Bikram Yoga offers 90-minute sweat sessions designed to help yogis reap physical, mental, and spiritual benefits. Close by, Brahman Yoga Harlem offers affordably priced vinyasa krama classes that teach mindful movement, controlled breathing, and meditation as students flow through a series of positions. Those looking for a more intense workout might want to check out Link Fitness in Riverbank State Park. Link offers a variety of group classes including boxing, circuit training, and strength & conditioning. For a more personalized approach to fitness, book a private or semi-private session at Riverside Pilates, where instructors focus is on strengthening and shaping the entire body.

For a caffeinated pick-me-up, West Harlem has more than a handful of delightful coffee shops. The small but cheery Sugar Hill Café, located conveniently close to the 145th Street Station, brews tasty espressos and serves up an assortment of pastries and small eats. Also in Hamilton Heights, the Chipped Cup offers a quaint indoor space for enjoying a cup of joe, as well as a lovely outdoor patio replete with lush potted plants, cozy string lights, and plenty of shade. A favorite among the City College crowd, Café One is a fantastic place for a coffee break or light bite between classes. At Monkey Cup, you can get your usual coffee fix served alongside a quiche, croissant, or other tasty treat, but the house specialty Monkeyccino decorated with adorable bowtie-wearing monkey latte art is pretty hard to resist (and Instagram-worthy to boot!). Last, but certainly not least, at Kuro Kuma Espresso & Coffee patrons enjoy expertly brewed coffee from Counter Culture and pastries from the iconic Balthazar bakery.

In West Harlem, there are plenty of places to grab a drink (or two) with friends or enjoy a quiet cocktail with your date. On Broadway in Hamilton Heights, the hip Harlem Public opens daily at lunch, but keeps drinks flowing well after sundown. Here, locals love to pair the legendary Peanut Butter Burger and Tots with a selection off the extensive menu of craft beers. Next door, At the Wallace is a lively spot for highly-spirited games of shuffleboard, giant Jenga, and Connect Four. Between rounds you can nosh on calorie-loaded but delectable bar food that includes grilled cheeses, hot dogs, and waffle fries and wash it all down with a beer or cocktail. At the Hogshead Tavern, another favorite with the craft beer crowd, the pork belly grilled cheese and sliders are beloved eats, but the joint is also popular for its weekday happy hour and bottomless weekend brunch. On a hot day, the Bierstrasse NYC offers relief in the form of monstrous refreshments – try the 2-liter glass boot (dubbed Das Boot) filled with a cold draught or enjoy a party-sized punch bowl or sangria pitcher with your entire posse. Grab your drink of choice and some grub and relax on the huge covered patio with views of the Hudson. For those looking for a quieter spot to imbibe, the Anchor Wine Bar has superb Italian fare and a fantastic selection of wines and hand-crafted cocktails.

We love West Harlem for the diverse tapestry of people that live here, the vibrant and friendly energy and the feeling of community.” – Andrew Ding, Owner – The Hand Pulled Noodle & Chipped Cup

West Harlem has such a diverse, fun and laid back community. It really allows us to be creative and try tons of new things.” – Chad Vignuelle, Owner – At The Wallace & Harlem Public

I love Morningside Heights because it has always had a strong sense of community. Small business is a vibrant part of what makes the neighborhood special. People know each other and look out for one another.” – Liane Nikitovich, Owner – Riverside pilates

We love that West Harlem is a true community that supports one another and provides a platform for small businesses to thrive.” – Ella Jane & Matthew Wells, Owners – Brahman Yoga

Imperial Storage is a local NYC self and full-service storage company, with offices in Manhattan and three convenient storage locations across the Bronx and New Jersey. We serve the entire New York City metropolitan area, including all five boroughs, plus New Jersey and Connecticut. Please click below for more information about each of the areas that we serve:

Imperial Storage is a local company committed to making your NYC storage experience as painless and affordable as possible. As fellow New Yorkers, we understand the need for extra space, which is why we offer some of the cheapest rates on storage units in the City. Whether you're downsizing, dislocated, or don't have enough room, we have an affordable storage solution for you!

With our NYC self-storage, you have 24/7 access to our clean and secure NYC storage facilities. Choose from an assortment of storage units, from mini storage lockers to extra spacious units that can accommodate the contents of an entire home or office. Self-storage offers the flexibility to come and go from your unit as often as needed, on your schedule. This is a great option for both personal and business storage needs!

In addition to several self-storage options, we are also proud to offer the convenience of on-demand storage. When you reserve storage space with us, you may schedule FREE pick-up and door-to-door delivery from anywhere in Brooklyn, the Bronx, Manhattan, Queens, or Staten Island. Our moving professionals will ensure your belongings are safely secured in one of our modern storage warehouses. Pay a low monthly rate on your unit, and just let us know when you're ready for your goods to be delivered.

Most New Yorkers struggle to fit all of their belongings into NYC's notoriously small apartments. If your closets are overflowing, or you have more furniture than you know what to do with, now may be the best time to look into moving your things to storage. With self-storage and warehouse storage facilities, we have plenty of room to house all of your unused or unessential belongings. From mattresses to coffee tables to fur coats and more, find cheap monthly storage for all of your household goods.

Renting a storage unit is a great option for businesses who have outgrown their commercial or retail space. Declutter your office of archived documents, excess inventory, and unused office furniture by leasing a space at one of our three convenient facilities.

While paperless may be the way of the future, there are plenty of people who still have boxes upon boxes of important paper documents. If your home or office is drowning in a sea of document boxes that can't be tossed or shredded, free up space by moving them into a storage unit. Our facilities are dry and climate-controlled, so your documents will be fine whether you leave them boxed up for a few months or a few years.

Tired of trying to weave your way through your apartment's maze of furniture? Or just need a temporary holding place for your things? Call us to reserve a storage unit to accommodate everything from end tables to your California king bed. With our on-demand service, you can even schedule a FREE pick-up. Forget renting a truck or trying to solicit the help of friends, our friendly moving professionals will do all of the heavy lifting and deliver your furniture to one of our secure storage facilities.

We have three storage locations across the Bronx and New Jersey, making storage convenient for residents of New York City. Lower overhead also means we can pass on savings to customers – Imperial storage offers some of the lowest storage rental rates in NYC.

Page: Upper East Side Movers' Neighborhood Guide & Infographic

Giving you the inside scoop on all the neighborhoods in New York!

The Upper East Side, along with Lenox Hill-Roosevelt Island, ranks as Manhattan's most populous neighborhood with approximately 224,000 residents. Reputed as a neighborhood for New York City's upper-crust, the Upper East Side is known as one of the most luxurious and wealthiest neighborhoods in Manhattan. Here, residents live in meticulously kept brownstones and buildings with doormen, just blocks from the opulent shops and upscale eateries that line Madison Avenue. This is a neighborhood of professionals, bankers, and finance-types, where old money, culture, and sophistication mingle.

The Upper East Side, and its smaller counterpart Lenox Hill, flank the east side of Central Park, spanning all the way to the East River between 59th and 96th Streets. Getting around the neighborhood and to other parts of the city is easy, as the Upper East Side scores well in terms of both walkability and public transportation. Though two subway lines serve the neighborhood, the IRT Lexington Avenue Line and the 2nd Avenue Subway, it's not uncommon to see Upper East Siders stepping into chauffeur-driven cars instead. For those who prefer traveling on two wheels, the Upper East Side scores well in terms of bikeability with a bike score of 73 out of 100.

The area is home to many notable landmarks, including the 843-acre Central Park. The most visited urban park in the U.S., Central Park has several points of interest including the Conservatory Water with its model boats, the whimsical carousel and its dancing horses, the miniature but nonetheless grandiose Belvedere Castle, and the famed Loeb Boathouse, known for its fine dining and scenic views. Year-round, Central Park is where Upper East Siders come to play – whether that means picnicking with friends on the Great Lawn, diving into an impromptu game at the beach volleyball courts, visiting the animals at the Central Park Zoo, or skating circles at Wollman Rink during the frosty winter months.

Along 5th Avenue, which runs the eastern perimeter of the park, hordes of tourists flock to Museum Mile. Here they can browse through the contemporary works housed at the Guggenheim, glimpse the artistic treasures of the majestic Metropolitan Museum of Art, or tour one of the other five world-class museums just a stone's throw away.

When residents aren't strolling through Central Park or rushing to work, you might find them noshing at one of the neighborhood's many notable eateries. For special occasions, locals descend on Daniel, an upscale, contemporary French restaurant which features a 7- and 14-course tasting menu and requires reservations well in advance. When looking for a cozy, intimate experience, diners turn to Heidi's House, known for its mac 'n' cheese, chocolate souffles, and other comfort foods. For paella, margaritas, and delicious Latin fare, La Pulperia UES fits the bill, while twinkle lights, romantic lanterns, and upscale Thai street food making Up Thai a date night destination. Popular for its brunch spread, Uva also dishes up some of the city's best Italian food on its rustic backyard patio that makes it feel like you've been transported to the Italian countryside.

To maintain appearances after chowing down on the UES's best locals beeline it to the neighborhood's gyms. PushLab Fitness offers small group classes focused on an athletic-based training system of high-intensity workouts mixed with strength exercises, while Regenerate Fitness offers private and semi-private sessions focusing on corrective exercise and weight loss. Started by former NYC ballet dancer, Brynn Putnam, the Refine Method offers boutique classes focused on smarter workouts built around high intensity interval training. If spinning is your thing, try out neighborhood favorite Crank Indoor Cycling where instructors make riding both challenging and fun. And over on E. 61st, TS Fitness offers a mix of personal training, semi-private instruction, and group fitness classes for a focused and purposeful workout experience.

For morning pick-me-ups and afternoon caffeine boosts, Upper East Siders have no shortage of coffee shops to choose from. Though they serve coffee and teas, Two Little Red Hens is an incredible bakery best known for its cupcakes (the Brooklyn Blackout is “to die for”!), while Oslo Coffee Roasters offers freshly roasted, scrumptious sustainably sourced coffee. On E. 62nd between Lexington and Third, cozy Birch Coffee sources its beans from all over the world to offer its patrons coffee sure to please all palates. The DTUT Café offers an inviting place to sit and sip fresh roasted coffee from Toby’s Estate, with vintage couches, artistic lighting, and rustic wood finishes, while the hip Perk Kafe offers Stumptown coffee and an assortment of decadent pastries with several vegan-friendly options.

After the caffeine buzz wears off and the day’s work is done, you’ll find the Upper East Side watering holes filling up. Locals have lots of good options when it comes to imbibing. Scottish Whisky Bar, Caledonia UES, has an impressive selection of whisky (and whiskey) from the major regions of Scotland and from around the world, including Ireland, Japan, the U.S., but if you don’t like whisky neat, there are a handful of beers, cocktails, and wines on the menu as well. UES staple, The Penrose has a vintage feel and dishes up delightful eats alongside old-fashioned cocktails. For the beer aficionado, the Jeffrey, nestled under the Queensboro Bridge, is one of the best spots to find craft beer and casual bites. The Milton dishes up Irish fare (think cottage pie and fish and chips) and serves craft beers and cocktails in a pub setting. And last, but not least, the Drunken Munkey features an elegant cocktail bar where beautiful, hand-crafted cocktails are shaken and stirred into drinkable works of art. Don’t just come for drinks; make sure you stay long enough to try the incredible Indian cuisine made in the “Old Bombay” tradition.

Strict apartment rules, a shortage of elevators, and scarce street parking make moving to New York’s Upper East Side challenging. If you’re looking for reliable Manhattan movers to do the heavy lifting, call Imperial Moving & Storage. Named one of NYC’s best moving companies, we have been providing our exceptional moving services to Manhattan for over a decade. As a full-service mover, we assist with residential and commercial moves, and additionally offer VIP moving, packing and unpacking services, and convenient storage solutions. We’ll make sure your Upper East Side relocation goes smoothly, from the moment you Cheaper prices, but still the high-quality service you SHOULD expect from your moving provider.

At Imperial Moving & Storage, we understand the pain of trying to find an affordable moving option that you can actually trust. How many movers have you called to get quotes from so far? If it's more than 3-4, you've no doubt come to realize that your options are either incredibly cheap unlicensed movers with shady looking websites and business practices, or overpriced "corporate" type movers. What if there was a budget friendly option to choose from that you could actually trust with several hundred reliable Yelp reviews? Still curious, pick up the phone and talk with one of our friendly agents and we'll prove just how "cheap" our prices can be and just how stellar our quality is!

We move everything from uprights to grand pianos with precision and care!

Imperial Moving & Storage understands the importance of a cherished piano. Whether you need to transport your upright or baby grand to a church, concert venue or new residence, we're ready to help. Along with being rather heavy and cumbersome, a piano is delicate and requires special handling to ensure it arrives at its destination in the same condition as when we picked it up. Our NYC piano movers come equipped with specialized training and equipment to relocate any piano safely. Above all else, what separates our piano moving service is our attention to detail. The cost of moving a piano in New York City is dependent on several factors: piano type, weight, transport distance, the age of instrument (in terms of fragility), and difficulty of delivery (stairways, etc.). For an accurate estimate, call us now for a free quote!

Moving a piano is a complex and arduous task that's best left to experienced professionals. Here are a few reasons to consider hiring a piano moving company for your relocation:

Pianos are delicate instruments that require skill to move. Older models are particularly susceptible to damage and require handlers that know what they're doing. If you're looking to keep your prized musical instrument in its current condition, make sure to hire a professional that can expertly disassemble, wrap, crate, and reassemble it.

Pianos can be unbelievably bulky and heavy. However, you may think that, with the help of a few friends, you can easily move one. Think again. Ranging from a few hundred pounds to over half a ton, these behemoth instruments are no joke. To avoid back injury, a bruised ego or worse, contact Imperial Moving & Storage. We're happy to help you avoid any issues with your piano moving experience.

Piano moving requires special moving equipment, including a truck and dollies. Trying to move a piano in Manhattan or the other four boroughs without the proper equipment is asking for trouble. Quality piano moving specialists are highly trained and rely on several specialized tools, harnesses, and dollies to do the job right. Just as an amateur shouldn't attempt to fix electrical issues, it's a wise move to hire someone with adequate experience and skills to transport your piano.

Even if you've lived here your whole life, New York City is a tough place to transport an upright or grand piano on your own. Along with traffic and congestion, you may have to contend with multiple floors, stairs, and narrow hallways. The complexities of an NYC move are exhausting and can place your musical instrument at risk for major damage. Our NYC movers know all the tips and tricks to save you the potential pain and cost of trying to do it yourself.

Not every moving outfit is properly licensed and insured. Don't find this out the hard way with a damaged piano. Along with carrying up-to-date licensing and full insurance coverage, we practice risk management via comprehensive training and safety protocols to significantly reduce the likelihood of an incident.

The cost of hiring professional piano movers is incredibly inexpensive given the value of the instrument: Pianos aren't cheap. A grand piano can range in value from a few thousand dollars to six or even seven figures. So, why would anyone want to take the chance with a DIY attempt or an amateurish mover? To protect your investment, it pays to hire a top-rated piano relocation company. Your peace of mind is worth it!

Short notice and same day moving services from a top-rated NYC mover.

Moving is challenging enough without the added pressure of packing up and relocating in a hurry. There are lots of reasons for planning a last-minute move – maybe your other movers canceled on you, your living situation suddenly changed, you need to move as soon as possible for a new job, or there's a family emergency, and you need to relocate quickly. Whatever your reason for moving on short notice, Imperial Moving & Storage is here to help you navigate this stressful time. You can count on us to offer last-minute moving services to make this transition go smoothly. We also do our best to provide same-day moves for customers who need urgent assistance, depending on availability. So, put down those moving boxes and pick up the phone; we're ready and waiting to help you today!

Your dedicated and trusted household movers in NYC.

We know you have places to be, so our goal is to make your move as fast and efficient as possible! We offer the following last-minute moving services in NYC:

Whether you live in a regal brownstone in Brooklyn or a pre-war apartment building (without elevators) in Washington Heights, we can make your house or apartment relocation a snap. Over the years, we've helped thousands of New Yorkers move in and out of homes across the city, so we have the expertise to get you packed and ready to move quickly.

You can't exactly lug your dining room set onto the subway or cram your love seat in the back of an Uber. When it comes to quick delivery of your furniture, you need someone with the equipment to get the job done. From couches to credenzas, we have room for all your furniture in the back of our clean, well-maintained moving trucks.

In addition to residential relocations, we also have the crews and equipment to tackle commercial moves. Whether you own a boutique in SoHo or run a large company in the heart of the Financial District, we can help you relocate your business fast, so you can get back to running the daily operations.

Getting all your stuff boxed up and ready for moving day takes substantial time and energy. With a last-minute move, you might be tempted just to toss everything into trash bags and cross your fingers, but that's the surest way for items to end up getting smashed or broken. Instead of fretting or taking shortcuts, give us a call! Our crew will come armed with the boxes and supplies to get your home or office packed in time for moving day. We can also help with unloading or unpacking at the tail end of your move!

Some Imperial customers choose to rent a moving truck or storage container instead of hiring a full-service mover. If you don't need us to do the driving but still need a few extra sets of hands to do the lifting, loading, and hauling, we are here to assist. Our crews are masters at the art of packing a moving truck and securing the load to keep things as safe as possible while in transit. We can also help you unload at the end of a long road trip if you're moving to NYC.

A last-minute move might make you feel helpless or anxious, but instead of worrying over your impending deadline, leave the logistics to us. Here are a few excellent reasons to entrust us with your short notice relocation:

We have the best team in NYC

We are parents, friends, runners, gardeners, jokesters, and more.

Imperial Moving and Storage is a tightly-knit team of professionals based out of Greenwich Village NYC. We are parents, friends, runners, gardeners, jokesters, and more. We are passionate about partnering with good people and organizations to produce exceptional moving service for all relocation needs.

We create personalized packages with attention-to-detail...

Our skills are specific and extensive. We are specialists in every aspect of residential or commercial relocation . We create personalized packages with attention-to-detail, in order to ensure that your moving experience is catered to you, pleasant, and efficient.

We exist to help families and businesses arrive at their new homes or workspace.

That's simple. We exist to help families and businesses arrive at their new homes or workspace. It isn't enough to simply provide transportation. We endeavor towards making the moving experience as simple as possible, providing you a relaxed and positive start to your new location.

"Moving isn't just shipping, it's a journey. It's about people – helping them get to their life's next destination. We maintain our business on making this important experience as simple and pleasant as possible."

Danny, Owner Imperial Moving & Storage

The service that Imperial Moving provides is the result of a multi-faceted team effort; from planning to moving day, each member of our team works together to make the job as smooth as possible. Imperial's moving team is compensated higher than other employees in the moving field; we value their commitment, as well as the high-quality of personable custom service that this ensures. Our movers understand the ins-and-outs of packing and transporting furniture and delicate items, and coordinate with each-other to keep our client's moves on schedule. Our employees have the long-standing experience needed for completing moving projects in the absolute most friendly and professional manner in the industry – we guarantee your total satisfaction. Let the amazing staff at Imperial Moving help guide your next journey.

Relationships are our currency. Because, for us, success is measured by positive experiences, not the bottom line. We maintain relationships with clients – much of our business is through direct referral. With our referral programs as well as our Charity donation services, we aim to give back to the community.

Because it is simple. Imperial makes the moving process clear, understandable, and easy. We apply this concept to every aspect of our business, from consultation and packing, to transportation and unloading.

We concentrate our time and talent on providing an elite level of service. Our movers are paid a higher rate than in the industry – a greater investment on our part, but one that represents our family value and desire for exceptional service. Plus, prioritizing quality over quantity ensures your movers will be providing you personalized attention.

We believe in the importance of providing a catered experience to each of our customers. Feel free to ask any questions regarding any detail of the moving process – our team will break down the process to be as simple as possible, and take care of any extra storage, packing, or transport service you desire.

Relocating your home or office can be a big transition. Imperial Moving and Storage makes it our mission to make the experience as simple, quick, and relaxed as possible – so you can enjoy starting your new chapter.

People are people. Everyone deserves respect, transparency, and honesty – the three pillars of our every

Office of Modal Safety & Security Truck & Motor Carrier Safety

If you are moving within New York State, here are some helpful tips when choosing a mover...

The Department of Transportation grants licenses to moving companies that operate within New York State. If you've recently moved within New York State and have had a problem with your move, you can file a complaint with us and we'll look into the issues surrounding your move. Keep in mind that we only regulate moves that started and finished within New York.

If your shipment has crossed a state line, the jurisdiction over your move is now under the Federal government. This is true even if the move originated or terminated in New York State. You should contact the USDOT, Federal Motor Carrier Safety Administration at 1(888) 368-7238. More information regarding interstate moving can be viewed at their web site.

If your move resulted in loss or damage, be sure to notify your mover IN WRITING as soon as possible. Movers are required to respond to a written claim within 30 days and resolve the claim in writing within 120 days. Keep in mind that a resolution can be payment in full, a compromise settlement, or a denial of the claim. If you are dissatisfied with the settlement of your loss or damage claim, you can seek a resolution in Small Claims Court. The Department of Transportation cannot adjudicate loss or damage claims. This is a civil matter and you must seek a resolution in court. If you obtain a judgment from a court, the mover must pay the judgment within 30 days. If you do not receive payment, the Department will assist you in collection of the judgment.

If you have a moving complaint for other than loss or damage, we may be able to help. If you feel that the mover has not honored the contract, has engaged in questionable business practices, or has failed to provide you with all of the appropriate paperwork, you can file a complaint with us. To file a complaint against a mover, download this Consumer Complaint Form

After completing and signing the form, mail it to:

Please enclose copies of all paperwork and correspondence between you and your mover. Once we receive your complaint we will send you a letter advising you as to how your complaint will be handled. If you have any questions, you can contact us by e-mail at nymoving@dot.state.ny.us or by telephone at 1(518) 457-6512.

If you suffered loss or damage as a result of your move, notify your moving company in writing as soon as possible. The company is required to acknowledge your claim in writing within 30 days. The company has 120 days to settle your claim. If you are unhappy with the resolution of your claim, and are unable to resolve your differences with the company, you can seek resolution in court. Please refer to the following guide to small claims court for information regarding the process.

Page: SoHo & TriBeCa Movers' Neighborhood Guide & Infographic

Giving you the inside scoop on all the neighborhoods in New York!

SoHo & TriBeCa, along with Battery Park City and Greenwich Village, rank as Manhattan's 6th most populous area. Approximately 42,000 people call this stretch of the Big Apple home. Initially farmed by the Dutch, then later by the English and Italians, TriBeCa (which stands for "Triangle Below Canal Street") became a center for shipping and trading following the American Civil War and has flourished ever since. The name "SoHo" refers to the neighborhood's location "South of Houston Street" but also references the chic neighborhood of the same name in London, solidifying SoHo's urban credentials.

Reputed as some of Manhattan's trendiest neighborhoods, SoHo & TriBeCa are known for being an upscale center of arts, entertainment, and fashion. Residents here live in a mix of old and new housing, with cast-iron facades being one of the most notable architectural styles. Artists' lofts and galleries in industrial buildings sit shoulder-to-shoulder with upscale boutiques and high-end eateries. Here, culture and sophistication mix with downtown cool.

SoHo & TriBeCa and their smaller counterparts, Little Italy and Civic Center, sit on the far lower end of Manhattan, between the Hudson River and Bowery St./Center St. on one end, and Houston and Vesey St. on the other. Due to the area's relatively small size compared to other neighborhoods in Manhattan, SoHo & TriBeCa get excellent walkability scores. For those who prefer getting around on two wheels instead of on foot, biking here is also relatively better than in the rest of NYC. Additionally, SoHo & TriBeCa score 100/100 for public transit. In addition to buses, four subway lines serve the neighborhood: the Broadway-7th Avenue Local, the 7th Avenue Express, the 8th Avenue Express, and the 8th Avenue Local.

SoHo & TriBeCa have many culturally relevant landmarks, as well as convenient access to beautiful outdoor spaces. The Cast Iron Historical District was declared a National Historic Landmark in 1978 and encompasses most of the SoHo neighborhood. The community's development first started at the tail end of the 18th century, with the arrival of many wealthy residents. At the time, cast iron was a cheaper alternative to using granite or marble to create ornate facades, and some of those homes stand even today. St. Patrick's Cathedral is one of the largest Catholic churches in Manhattan – and one of the oldest. Immigrants and wealthy benefactors raised money to build the church in the 1850s. The stunning Neo-Gothic architecture alone makes it an impressive landmark, and the stained-glass windows are beautiful. Hudson River Park is a favorite place for locals to jog, walk, or just take in the view of the Hudson River. With more than 500 acres, the park boasts multiple dog parks and play areas for children. If you've ever wanted to learn how to build and sail a boat, the park's Village Community Boathouse is the place to do it. The Museum of Chinese in America (MOCA) exhibits art installations focused on the Chinese American experience. It encourages an educational and cultural understanding of Chinese heritage in NYC. Little Italy is historically known for its large Italian population. The area still boasts an impressive number of authentic restaurants dishing up pizza and pasta, and several shops selling olive oil and other staples of Italian cuisine.

True to its heritage as a seaport and early settlement by Italian immigrants, the area offers many great options for tasting Italian and seafood, as well as cuisine from all over the world. For a romantic evening out, locals turn to Balthazar, a SoHo brasserie that's famed for authentic French cuisine. This little upscale eatery can get crowded, which makes reservations a must, but the wait is worth it for "creamy" lobster bisque and "juicy" burgers. Despaña offers tapas that locals describe as "delicious," as well as a grocery selection for who'd rather prepare food at home. Lure Fishbar serves fresh fish and boasts a raw sushi bar, in a "yachtlike" setting that evokes being out on the open water. Locanda Verde has been serving trendy Italian food since 2009; locals recommend trying the sheep's milk ricotta with extra virgin olive oil and grilled Ciabatta bread.

To maintain appearances after chowing down, locals turn to some of SoHo and TriBeCa's top gyms to train and tone. The "fantastic" atmosphere at UFC Gym NYC SoHo keeps locals returning to it for high-intensity boxing and kickboxing classes. Other neighborhood residents rave about the Muay Thai and kettlebell training classes offered at Five Points Academy. ICE NYC delivers CrossFit classes in an “approachable” setting with “superb” coaching. For an all-over workout that cranks up the energy, locals turn to Exceed Physical Culture, a studio that offers cross-body training. Locals say that the coaches at the Trinity Boxing Club are “excellent,” with years of experience and a genuine passion for boxing and training.

Whether it’s a pick-me-up before work or a caffeine boost during the daily grind, the artists, professionals, and real estate agents that work in the neighborhood know where to get their local coffee fix. Harney & Sons is an old-fashioned tea shop, with scones and other breakfast favorites to go with its impressive array of teas. A spacious layout and comfy seating means you’ll find locals sitting here for hours, long after they finish the last mug of tea. La Colombe Coffee is famous for its draft latte, which draws lines out the door. MarieBelle is a chocolatier and café that locals say is “magical” to visit in person. Ground Support beckons to passersby for a change of pace, with a relaxed attitude and laidback vibes. Be sure to try the House Blend, which is freshly roasted in-house. Baked offers an ever-rotating menu of sweets, coffees, and teas, and you’ll find students and professionals alike taking a break from work to eat their “delicious” banana chocolate loaf.

After the day’s work is done, residents mix and mingle at SoHo & TriBeCa’s chicest bars. The options for imbibing are as diverse as the neighborhood itself. For date night, locals head to Anotheroom, an unassuming lounge with cozy seating and an impressive selection of craft beers. Smith and Mills has a unique location: it’s in an old carriage house, and the now bathroom had a previous life as an elevator. The seating here is snug, encouraging intimate conversation over classic cocktails. Locals recommend bringing a few friends to try their cocktail menu and small plates.

Woodrow’s is a neighborhood bar with a loyal crowd of regulars who come for the pub food and stay for the beers. Brandy Library is a “classy” place with ambiance: the bottles are lined up on shelves around the room, hence the library name. Regulars recommend snagging a reservation, as the bar doesn’t allow standing room.

Website: www.imperialmovers.com

Pegu Club is known for its signature cocktails and old-fashioned atmosphere, with nightly jazz performances.

I have been living in Soho for the past 30 years I still have the same feeling I got then, of being in a Small City inside a Big City, friendly and most people know each other in the neighborhood, is a beautiful energy.”

– Maribel Lieberman, CEO & Founder – MarieBelle New York Chocolates

Soho is fantastic! We have the best neighbors, some really interesting history. It was a hub for factories in its previous life, and the residual structures are huge old loading docks – which are the perfect places to sit and enjoy your coffee!” – Steven Sadoff, Owner – Ground Support Cafe

With its great variety of bars and restaurants, along with no shortage of shopping options, it really is the biggest little neighborhood in the city.” – Shawn Rhynehart, General Manager – Brandy Library

Limited street parking, narrow walkups, and strict apartment rules mean moving to the Big Apple has a few hurdles. Contact Imperial Moving & Storage (imperialmovers.com) for reliable, professional moving service and help with the heavy lifting. We’ve been providing our moving expertise to Manhattan for over ten years, aiding with both office and residential moves. Imperial also offers other relocation services including secure storage, last minute moves, packing & unpacking, and more. We’ll make sure every detail of your SoHo & Tribeca move goes off without a hitch, from the moment you call for a free quote. Give us a call today to get started!

Giving you the inside scoop on all the neighborhoods in New York!

Central Harlem is Manhattan's ninth most populous neighborhood, home to almost 130,000 New Yorkers. Originally settled in the 1650s by the Dutch, then later by Irish and Jewish immigrants, Central Harlem boomed in the early 20th century as the Great Migration brought droves of African Americans to the area. Following the Migration, the area flourished during the "Harlem Renaissance" of the 1920s, a movement in which black artists, thinkers, authors, and artists made great artistic and cultural contributions. Harlem's hey-day was short-lived, however, as the Great Crash of 1929 and ensuing Great Depression brought unemployment and poverty to the neighborhood. Today, this historic neighborhood has seen a resurgence. An influx of new residents has descended on this affordable and conveniently located area, occupying the modern high rises and pre-war apartments that line the neighborhood's bustling residential streets.

Central Harlem is nestled between Morningside Ave./St. Nicholas Ave. on the west and 5th Ave. on the east, just north of Central Park and south of the Harlem River. Central Harlem gets some of the best scores in Manhattan for walkability; it's easy to get around the neighborhood and travel to the rest of the city on foot. Additionally, it scores 100/100 for public transportation. In addition to buses, four subway lines serve Central Harlem: the 6th Avenue Express, 7th Avenue Express, 8th Avenue Express, and the Lexington Avenue Express.

Many of the landmarks located in Central Harlem are significant to black history. The Studio Museum is a contemporary art museum that showcases art by those of African descent, as well as artwork that is influenced by black culture. The National Black Theater has served as a place of community and connection for artists of color since it was founded in the late 1960s and presents pieces that document the black experience. The Apollo Theater, located on West 125th St., was founded in 1914 but didn't open to black audiences until 1934. Since then, performers like Louis Armstrong and Aretha Franklin have appeared on its famed stage. The Apollo is credited with launching the careers of many successful artists like Ella Fitzgerald and Mariah Carey.

In addition to culturally relevant landmarks, Central Harlem also boasts easy access to outdoor spaces. Marcus Garvey Park has two playgrounds, both of which are designed to accommodate children with disabilities, and an outdoor pool. Families from throughout the neighborhood flock to the park to play pickup games of basketball or watch concerts at the park's amphitheater when the weather is nice. The park is named after Marcus Garvey, who advocated for black economic and social independence in the 20th century.

Crossing over Central Park North, Central Harlem residents are just a stone's throw from the city's biggest playground – Central Park. On the north end of the park sits the Conservatory Garden, which features six acres of carefully manicured lawns and flower beds. The garden is officially designated as a Quiet Zone, perfect for escaping with a good book or taking a relaxing stroll.

When they're not hustling to or from work or strolling past the Central Park Meer, many Central Harlem locals can be found eating delicious food at nearby eateries. Locals turn to Lolo's Seafood Shack to satisfy their seafood cravings in a relaxed, comfortable atmosphere reminiscent of a Caribbean island. Featured in several notable publications, including NY Daily News and the NY Times, this popular restaurant is best known for its Cape comfort foods and Caribbean street foods, like the crispy conch fritters. Just off St. Nicholas Avenue, a few blocks north of Central Park, the Seasoned Vegan is a family-owned operation promoting organic, 100% vegan soul food. Enjoy the restaurant's cozy vibes while you nosh on favorites like the soy chicken nuggets, baked mac 'n' cheese, and the sweet potato soufflé. For weekend brunches with friends (and bottomless mimosas), locals say you can't go wrong with Lido, where the food is just as bright as the ambiance. With mouthwatering options like Smoked Salmon Benedict and the Tuscan Pizza Tart, you'll likely have a hard time deciding which dish to dig into. For the traditional Southern soul food that Harlem is known for, head to Amy Ruth's. This Harlem staple has been dishing up deliciousness since 1999, when owner Carl S. Redding started cooking traditional Southern recipes passed down from his beloved grandmother, Amy Ruth. Popular menu items include the chicken and waffles, the cheesy grits, and the smothered pork chops. Finally, if you're looking to spice up date night, book a table at neighborhood favorite, Abyssinia Ethiopian. Here, traditional Ethiopian recipes like Meat Sambusa, Doro Wat, and Yebeg Awaze Tibs are served up in a friendly, casual setting.

Central Harlem gyms are just as diverse as the neighborhood's food choices. Here you'll find studios with fitness classes to suit every taste. Harlem Cycle, the neighborhood's first boutique cycling studio, offers intense classes led by motivating instructors. Get whipped into shape with fun, energy-filled workouts like Hip Hop Sugar Hill and the Reggae Rundown. For a slower pace, head to Harlem Yoga Studio, which is on a mission to provide fun and affordable yoga classes to Central Harlem. Many of the classes are donation-only, making it easy to pay as you are able. This yoga studio also does community outreach through workplace yoga classes that teach the power of yoga to local businesses. Local favorite Balanced Pilates has three different locations, but the basic principles are the same at each one: personalized instruction and effective workouts. Try it out using an intro package or jump straight into taking private or duet sessions or a small group class. If you're looking to connect with your inner martial arts master, Pouncing Tigers is your spot. This martial arts studio offers classes for both kids and adults in a setting that emphasizes respect and discipline. Studio founder and head instructor, Ken Gibson, has been teaching martial arts for over 20 years. If you prefer a more traditional gym, Blink Fitness has gyms scattered across the NYC metro area, including a popular location at W. 116th street. This relatively new gym offers affordable memberships starting at just $15/month and emphasizes fitness for everyone – regardless of shape, size, or prior experience – so you can feel comfortable and happy working out.

Whether it's during the morning rush or a much-needed afternoon caffeine break, Central Harlem residents take their cups of joe seriously. The Edge Harlem is a neighborhood eatery and hip coffee shop that serves up daily brunch for New Yorkers who aren't in a mad rush to get to the subway. Choose from delicious brunch entrees inspired by Jamaican, English, and American cuisine, then wash it down with a standard drip coffee or a favorite from the espresso menu. For a quaint, small-town feel in the big city, locals head to Lenox Coffee to get their coffee fix. This shop claims the title of the first Micro Roaster in Upper Manhattan, roasting up delicious single origin drip coffees as well as cold brews and espresso blends. Start your day off right by enjoying a mug of the good stuff while you savor one of the popular bagel breakfast sandwiches at this cozy little café on 129th street. If you're more of a tea drinker than a coffee person, Central Harlem locals say you can't go wrong with Serengeti Tea & Spices, which serves up some of the best tea flavors from Africa and around the globe. While the Nairobi Street Chai is a customer favorite, the shop boasts over 100+ tea varieties, so you're sure to find something that suits your palette. Founded as the go-to neighborhood coffee shop, Manhattanville Coffee brews Intelligentsia Coffee and offers patrons an assortment of locally baked pastries in a warm and welcoming atmosphere. A crowd pleaser, this coffee shop has been so successful that they recently opened a second location in Brooklyn. Last, but certainly not least, for the truly classic NYC diner experience, Morningside Coffee & Biscuits should top your list. Each morning this neighborhood establishment whips up fresh and fluffy, scratch-made Southern-style biscuits that are the perfect accompaniment to your morning coffee or espresso.

After a busy day at work, Central Harlem locals like to let their hair down at some of the neighborhood's best watering holes. Many regard Shrine Bar as one of the best live music venues in city. Here you can imbibe on cocktails like Afro Trip or the Mango Mojito while enjoying the artistry of independent musicians from around the world. Over on Frederick Douglass Blvd, the small space at 67 Orange makes happy hour with friends feel like a special occasion. Best known for its cocktail selection, 67 Orange also has a full kitchen that serves up dishes like red velvet waffles and truffle fries. With a cozy, intimate setting, PEQUE Vinos + Tapas is a neighborhood go-to for a quiet dinner with friends or a romantic date night. PEQUE offers diners ambiance as well as an extensive wine selection and tasty small plates. Harlem Nights is a newer bar that locals say perfectly captures the spirit of Harlem. This spot is known for great happy hour specials, nightly live music performances, and friendly bartenders. Bill's Place is a classic Harlem jazz venue that got its start as a speakeasy during the Prohibition.

It's only open on Fridays and Saturdays, and seating is limited, so be sure to book your tickets in advance!

I love so many things about Harlem; the diversity, the history, the accessibility to the many parks, the spacious wide sidewalks, convenient public transportation, but my favorite thing is the way it feels like a small town community in the middle of a fantastic city.” – Susannah Koteen, Owner – Lido

We are so excited to have this coffee shop in the same neighborhood we grew up in. As Harlem continues to grow and change, it's nice to have places in our community that still feel like home. ” – Monica & Rosa Prado, Co-Owners – Lenox Coffee

Harlem has been my home for the last 16 years. I love this neighborhood for its legacy, its authenticity, and the fact that there are so many great diverse people here. People say hi on the streets and even though Harlem is probably the biggest neighborhood in NYC it feels like a small tight community.” – Karl Franz Williams, Owner and Head Bar Man – 67 Orange Street

We love the diverse community and rich history of our neighborhood.” – Juliet & Justine Masters, Owners – The Edge Harlem

Harlem is a place where respect is the most important currency. Being able to welcome new additions to the neighborhood and a place where families that have been here for generations can train together is an honor.” – Ken Gibson, Owner – Pouncing Tigers

What we love about Central Harlem is that it's the last neighborhood in Manhattan that still feels like old New York. Such a beautiful and tight community.” – Teddy Kehagias , Co-Owner – Morningside Coffee

I love the people and sense of community, and cherish the new relationships I've created here.” – Claud Fatu , Owner – Harlem Nights

I like the way the light falls through different seasons on the big sidewalks and side streets and you know you're just a stone's throw away from the hustle and bustle of downtown. You still know you're a part of the city when you can look down and see the Freedom Tower which connects us all." – Kathy Condon , Bartender – Harlem Nights

There is a magic in the air that stems from walking the streets many legends once did. The Billie Holidays, the Malcolm X's, the Langston Hughes ... but there is a new energy infusing the area. New generations of entrepreneurs and artists, dreamers and activists, writers and musicians, all converging on one magical block where the greats of times past and the fresh energy of future generations join together in infinite possibilities and create new landscapes of what Harlem is. The magic is not being lost, it is evolving, and it is thrilling to be a part of." – Jenny Lischer , Bartender – Harlem Nights Harlem is diverse, cultural, community atmosphere, home to music. Something is happening 7 days a week. Who doesn't love Harlem?" – Joe Hill , Music Director – Harlem Nights

Your dedicated and trusted household movers in NYC.

Whether you live in a charming studio in SoHo or a penthouse on the Upper East Side, you know that planning a relocation in New York City has its challenges. Congested streets, difficult landlords, tricky building rules, and other relocation hurdles unique to New York can turn an already stressful moving day into a nightmare. Turning your move over to a professional licensed and insured NYC mover can alleviate most of your moving woes and headaches.

From walk-ups to brownstones to buildings with doormen, no New York City residence is beyond the scope of our moving services. We're happy to provide reliable service to customers across all five boroughs, no matter where they call home. Here are just some of the ways we can assist with your move:

From start to finish, you can expect a superior level of professionalism from Imperial Moving and Storage. Part of that professionalism means showing up when we promise to. Our residential moving crews live here, so they know all the ins and outs of navigating the city. With NY's traffic and crowded streets, this knowledge is essential to ensuring your move stays on track. If you are moving within Manhattan, Queens, Brooklyn, Bronx or Staten Island, you can rest assured that our movers know the best route for a timely arrival. Based on our years of local moving experience, we provide customers with accurate quotes for local moves at affordable hourly rates.

Though Imperial Moving and Storage is a local, New York moving company, we also perform long distance and cross country moves. We're a US DOT licensed mover with the manpower and fleet of trucks to execute your interstate relocation. So, if you are looking to move to or from New Jersey, Connecticut, Washington DC, Massachusetts, Florida, or another part of the contiguous US, just let us know. Our sales representatives are ready to help you plan your out-of-state or cross-country relocation.

As a full-service moving company, Imperial Moving & Storage provides our customers with everything they need for a successful move. This service includes packing, unpacking, moving services, and storage. Let our staff and movers customize your moving experience.

Even if you live in a small apartment, getting everything boxed and ready for moving day takes considerable effort. If you're running out of time or unsure of the best strategy for tackling this part of the moving process, give our team a call. Imperial Moving and Storage offers full- and partial-packing solutions to make your life easier during this transition. We'll bring premium boxes and other packing supplies to your home and carefully wrap your belongings for you. When we drop off your load, we can also help with unboxing your items, so you don't spend weeks living in a sea of unopened boxes.

Need a hand transporting your living room furniture to your next apartment or getting that couch into storage? Imperial Moving and Storage is equipped to handle all your residential furniture moving needs. Our team will disassemble pieces as necessary and wrap each one, so they remain damage-free throughout the move. We can also help with tasks like reassembling your bedframes or putting your Ikea desk back together.

In addition to moving services, we also serve NYC with affordable storage solutions. Request on-demand pick-up for our secure warehouse facilities or inquire about our self-storage units located throughout the New York area. Streamlining storage with your moving services simplifies your entire relocation experience.

We know you have lots of choices when it comes to selecting a moving company in New York City. Here are just some of the reasons to let us handle your relocation:

The managers, crews, and sales team at Imperial Moving and Storage have years of experience in the industry. We can answer all your questions and ensure we take all the necessary steps, so you have a smooth relocation.

We are a full-service relocation company, which means we can handle your move from start to finish. Count on us to manage every aspect of your move, whether you're relocating a student's studio in the Village or a 100-employee Midtown office.

Website: www.imperialmovers.com

We will tailor the move according to your needs and specifications. Upon request, we can fully pack and unpack for you, provide boxes and packing materials, and do anything else that you need to ensure a stress-free moving day.

Imperial Moving and Storage is also a long-distance relocation company, licensed by the U.S. Department of Transportation. With these credentials, we can help you relocate you to any state in the country, from the East Coast to the West Coast.

Most of our clientele reaches us through referrals, which means we have lots of happy customers. Be sure to check out our reviews!

You have the option of receiving a flat rate for your move upon request. This pricing option makes budgeting for your relocation simple and straightforward.

A secure and temperature-controlled storage facility is available for your use and convenience.

Imperial Moving and Storage attracts the best relocation professionals in the city due to our attractive employee benefits. We believe that securing top talent translates to a better experience for our customers.

We are proud to present project, “Imperial Donations,” a unique community service outreach that helps you donate your slightly used items to charities across NYC. We’ll pick up these items during your move and drop them off at a donation center near you, free of charge.

Imperial Moving and Storage maintains $2 million worth of General Liability insurance, as well as required Workers’ Compensation insurance coverage. Many residential and commercial office buildings in New York

Your dedicated and trusted household movers in NYC.

Whether you are moving just one large piece of furniture or transporting a load of furniture along with the rest of your household goods, Imperial Moving has you covered with furniture hauling and delivery services across the NYC metro area.

Worried about how to get that oversized couch down from your apartment on the fifth floor? Hauling couches up and down stairs, through narrow hallways, and around tight corners is one of our areas of expertise. We'll get your couch moved out or in, in no time!

Larger furnishings, like beds, dining tables, and IKEA pieces may require disassembly to safely and efficiently move. Imperial Movers can assist with taking apart these cumbersome pieces, and we can even help you with furniture reassembly and arranging once the movers unload the truck.

To protect your furniture from dings, scratches or tearing during the moving process, it's essential that each piece is wrapped in a protective moving blanket or layer of plastic wrap. We come equipped with everything needed to protect your furniture. Your movers will take time to ensure each item is adequately covered to prevent damage during moving or transport. On the truck, we use tie downs to ensure bulky pieces stay in place while in transit.

Need help moving furniture into or out of storage? In addition to moving services, Imperial Moving & Storage also offers storage services for customers in all five boroughs. Safely store your items in a self-storage unit conveniently located in NYC or arrange for on-demand pick-up with free door-to-door delivery.

If you're moving your furniture out-of-state or across the country, Imperial Movers can help with that too. We are a fully-licensed interstate moving company offering service anywhere in the country in addition to select markets abroad.

From oversized conference tables to rows upon rows of desks, chairs, and cubicles, Imperial Moving & Storage is here to get all your office furniture safely from Point A to Point B. Whether you're moving to roomier office space or transporting old furniture to storage, make your commercial relocation a breeze with the help of our Manhattan-based moving crews.

Older pieces, like family heirlooms or cherished vintage finds, require extra TLC when moving. These one-of-a-kind pieces are often irreplaceable, fragile, and may even hold sentimental value. We take special care with antique furniture, painstakingly packing and crating items for maximum protection while in transit.

Our goal is to ensure you get many more years of use out of these already well-loved pieces.

Imperial Moving & Storage transports your furniture with speed, efficiency, and a careful touch. Here are a few more reasons to entrust us with your move:

Planning a cross-country or state-to-state move? From Washington State to Texas, Imperial Moving and Storage can help you relocate from New York City to anywhere in the United States. We are committed providing you with a seamless moving experience, ensuring that your shipment is always in skilled hands and that it arrives promptly.

A long-distance move means that your belongings may travel hundreds or thousands of miles to get to their destination. Ensuring you pack items properly is essential to their safety on this lengthy trip. Imperial Moving & Storage has all the boxes, tape, packing paper, and other supplies you need to make sure your possessions are adequately wrapped and cushioned for the road ahead.

Perhaps you need to be out of your apartment at the end of the month, but you're not quite sure where you are moving. Or maybe you're moving to New York City, but haven't found the ideal living situation. Whatever the circumstances surrounding your move, you may need storage for a few weeks or months during your relocation. Imperial Moving & Storage has several storage facilities conveniently located in the NYC metro area. Our crew can pick up your things and pack them away in storage, where they will be safe and secure until you're ready for final delivery.

Too busy to deal with all the logistics of your move on top of everything else in your life? We offer a full-service moving package that streamlines your relocation – whether you're a busy professional with a demanding job or an empty nester moving to warmer climes. A full-service move means our team does everything to ensure your move goes off without a hitch. From disassembling your bed frame and other furniture to loading up boxes with your book collection, to loading and driving the moving truck, we handle all the heavy lifting, so you don't have to do a thing.

Whether you're looking to ship a few treasured antique items or a whole home's worth of furniture, Imperial Moving & Storage has your solution to long distance furniture moving. Our team will disassemble, wrap, and secure your items in one of our clean and well-maintained moving trucks for the long-distance haul. We take caring for your belongings seriously, ensuring your couch, armoire, dressers, coffee table, and bookcases are transported safely, no matter how many states away you're moving.

If you live in a 1-bedroom or studio apartment, you might wonder whether it's worth hiring a professional mover to transport your belongings. To keep small moves like this affordable, we offer consolidated container services, combining your shipment with shipments of other customers. Consolidated shipping means lower overhead costs for us, which translates to significant savings for you. Our rates for small load long-distance moves are surprisingly reasonable, especially if you weigh them against the time and money you would spend renting a truck and doing it on your own.

Whether you currently live in a rent-controlled apartment in the West Village or a renovated brownstone in Carroll Gardens, you're probably facing your move to a new residence with a stomach-churning mixture of excitement and trepidation. Imperial Moving & Storage is here to put your fears to rest, so you can face your relocation with enthusiasm. We specialize in residential moving services for homes of all sizes and moves of any distance. Our team will ensure you get moved out of one home and settled into the next as quickly as possible, with minimal disruption, so you can start enjoying life in a new locale.

Moving your business to greener pastures? An office move entails scoping out a new commercial space, sorting out legal and regulatory issues, physically transporting files, furniture & equipment, and getting key employees on board to move locations. While details of an in-town business move are challenging, the magnitude of a long-distance relocation is even more taxing. Hiring a knowledgeable commercial moving company like Imperial Moving & Storage can help you keep your move on track, ensuring a faster relocation with less downtime for your business.

Ready to get started with your move? Our representatives are available 7 days a week to answer any questions you might have regarding your relocation! Call us today to request a free over-the-phone estimate.

Any move has its share of challenges, but a long-distance one can feel especially grueling. In addition to the regular chores of packing up and cleaning out your current place, you may be facing added pressure to find a new neighborhood in an unfamiliar city, starting a new career, or getting your family on board to move hundreds of miles from home. At times, the process may feel overwhelming – especially if you don't have a game plan. Here are some helpful tips to ensure that your relocation doesn't get derailed:

Scrambling to get everything done at the last minute only leads to frustration and anxiety. The best way to keep stress at bay during this major transition is to start preparing for your move well in advance. Even if you aren't moving for several months, you can start planning now. Sit down and create a list of everything you need to accomplish over the next 2-3 months in order to have a smooth move. Making this checklist now will help you stay organized and give you the satisfaction of checking items off as you make progress.

One of the first things that should be on your list is finding a long distance mover. While booking same day might work for an in-town move, the schedules of interstate moving companies often fill up weeks or even months in advance. When shopping for a moving company, keep in mind that at a minimum, you should be looking for one that carries the appropriate licensing and insurance, has glowing reviews, and that will provide a free in-home estimate. Imperial Moving & Storage checks all these boxes and then some! Let us put our years of long-distance moving experience to work for you.

Before you start assembling moving boxes, throw open those drawers and cabinets and get to work decluttering. Experts suggest sorting items into piles to keep, toss, sell, and donate. Clearing out your unused and unwanted items makes the packing process more straightforward and is one of the best ways to reduce moving costs. Long distance movers charge for according to the distance of the move and weight of the shipment. You probably have at least a few hundred pounds of clutter lurking in your closets and overflowing from your drawers. Think what a relief it would be to move without this extra baggage!

You can feasibly start packing for your move a month or two in advance. Start with out-of-season or infrequently items, like holiday décor, fancy serving dishes, and off-season clothing. You likely won't miss these things if they are packed away a little early. A few additional packing tips:

If you're moving to an unfamiliar place, you might want to fly out there for an extended weekend. This trip can help you get a feel for the city and hone-in on the most desirable neighborhoods. You can also take this time to meet with a real estate agent or tour apartments.

A couple of weeks prior to the move, file a change of address form with the Postal Service. This simple step (that you can tackle quickly online) will save you the headache of your future mailings ending up in the wrong hands. Though the USPS will forward your mail for a while, you'll still need to let people know about your move. Make sure your address is updated with the following:

In the days or weeks that it takes for your belongings to ship across the country, you may forget what items you relinquished to the moving company. Before the movers show up to load the truck, create a home inventory. List major items of furniture along with a list of boxes and their contents. You can use this inventory as a checklist to ensure everything arrives at your new home. It's helpful to assign each box a number, so you can easily identify any missing boxes. Not only is this home inventory helpful for filing a mover claim, if needed, but it's also a great record to keep for home insurance purposes.

Whether you're driving to your new destination or taking another form of transportation, you need to plan your trip. A cross-country road trip is the perfect excuse for a mini vacation – you can seize the opportunity to see national landmarks and places you've never been, while someone else deals with driving a truck full of your stuff. Make sure to plan stops and book lodging along the way.

To prevent food waste, stop grocery shopping at least a week (if not longer) before your move. Plan meals around the ingredients already in your fridge or pantry. If you have lots of canned goods and other non-perishables you won't get to before the move, consider donating them to your local food bank.

Moving day is no time for children and pets to be underfoot. With a rush of movers in and out lugging heavy furniture and boxes, your home is sure to be chaos. Arrange offsite care for kids and pups on moving day. Not only, will this keep everyone safe, but it will help ease their anxiety about relocating.

By following these tips, you'll be well on your way to being prepared for your upcoming move. For all your long distance moving needs, be sure to give Imperial Moving & Storage a call! We're here to serve you throughout your relocation.

Local, friendly, reliable, hard-working, caring, & honest movers in New York!

Above Manhattan, beyond the curves of the Harlem River, sits the northernmost NYC borough – the Bronx. This 42 square mile patch of land is home to almost 1.5 million New Yorkers and growing. As Manhattan and Brooklyn become prohibitively expensive, many NYC residents are flocking to this underrated borough in search of cheaper housing and a lower cost of living. Known as the birthplace of hip-hop, the Bronx has a lot to love – the Bronx Zoo, Pelham Bay Park, Yankee Stadium, the New York Botanical Garden – just to name a few highlights. Here, you'll also enjoy roomier housing, excellent public transportation, ample parking, and a burgeoning food scene. Whether you're a long-time Bronx resident moving a few blocks away, a newcomer to the area, or packing your bags for a new locale, chances are that you could use some extra hands to make your relocation easier. Imperial Moving & Storage is a local, NYC moving company that's licensed and insured to help with your Bronx moving needs whether you're moving locally or long distance. For those who don't need 24/7 access to their storage unit, our on-demand storage option is the way to go! With on-demand storage, we offer FREE pick-up from your residence or business. Start by calling one of our friendly agents to reserve your space and schedule a pick-up time that works for you. Our team of licensed, professional movers will swing by, load your things onto one of our commercial moving trucks, and drop-them off at one of our secure warehouse facilities. You simply pay a low monthly rate based on the volume of your stored items, no strings attached.

This storage method is far more convenient than DIY self-storage, especially in a place like New York City where moving things can be a real hassle. With on-demand storage, you can avoid the stress of renting a truck, finding a parking spot, hauling your furniture and boxes out of your apartment, and navigating through traffic to get to your storage unit. Simply give us a call, and get your things into storage without breaking a sweat! When you're ready to collect your stored items, we'll happily deliver them to your desired drop-off location.

On-demand storage is by far the cheapest storage solution out there. Not only do you save by not having to rent a truck to haul your things to storage, but our on-demand rates are actually cheaper than renting comparable space at a self-storage facility. Contact us today for our latest rate specials, and find out why so many New Yorkers love our on-demand storage solution.

Proudly moving NYC since 2006.

Moving within New York City can be a challenging and overwhelming experience due to the city's crowded and busy streets, high-rise buildings, narrow staircases, and limited parking space. The process can be even more daunting for individuals or families with large amounts of furniture or belongings. The lack of parking space and limited loading and unloading zones can make it difficult to find a place to park, not to mention navigating the building elevators and COI restrictions. Trust a professional with decades of NYC moving experience and our local moving crews will have you in and out in no time.

Based in Manhattan, we're proud to serve the entire New York City metropolitan area, including all five boroughs and New Jersey.

Why are we one of New York's most trusted names in moving? Here are just a few of the reasons our moving service rises above the rest:

When moving your items, we use leading industry practices to ensure your valuable belongings are safe from breakage during every stage of the move. Experience the consistency and professionalism of our stellar services.

As a fully licensed, insured, and bonded company, we comply with all local and federal transportation regulations that protect you and your belongings during the moving process.

Our membership in the American Moving & Storage Association (AMSA) represents our commitment to quality and trustworthiness. When you move with Imperial Moving & Storage, you are getting the very best movers in NYC.

Additionally, we have membership in the New York State Movers & Warehousemen's Association, which ensures we adhere to the highest standards of excellence in the moving industry.

As a New York family-owned and operated company, we know our service is a cut above the rest. We pride ourselves on offering smooth moving experiences with a special touch that you simply don't get with faceless, corporate-owned moving companies. Hire movers you know and trust.

When it comes to moving day, there's no need to compromise. We offer the best combination of reliability and affordability, so you get the relocation services you need. To schedule your upcoming move or obtain a free moving estimate, please call one of our agents today.

High quality materials such as sturdy boxes, packing tape, and bubble wrap can prevent damage to fragile items and give our customers peace of mind knowing their possessions are well-protected.

Accurate estimates – no hidden fees or charges

Unexpected upcharges can break your trust and your bank account. With Imperial Moving & Storage, you can enjoy affordable movers without hidden fees or surprises for local and long distance movers and for moving a large house or small NYC apartment. What you see is what you get.

We prioritize customer service from the start of the quote process, to the move date, and until the job is finished. Our friendly and knowledgeable team will guide you through the entire moving process, providing clear communication, timely updates, and personalized attention to your unique needs.

A lot of moving companies claim that they're the best, but we let the reviews do the talking. We've helped thousands of New Yorkers relocate, and we believe their rave reviews are a testament to the outstanding services that we provide.

With other companies, you never know what to expect on moving day. Don't take the chance. Our equipment and trucks are thoroughly sanitized after every use, ensuring that your possessions stay clean and sanitary.

We look forward to the opportunity to serve you with our award winning moving and packing services! To schedule your upcoming move or obtain a free estimate from a trusted NYC moving company, please call one of our agents today.

Imperial Moving is ready to tackle any relocation, no matter how big or small. We offer the following hassle free moving services and guaranteed pricing from the best moving company in NYC.

Whether you live in a SoHo apartment or Brooklyn brownstone, we've got you covered. Imperial Moving & Storage offers reliable and top notch moving services at affordable rates. And since our crews live in the city, we know all of NYC's ins and outs for a drama-free residential moving experience.

Your business can't afford delays or downtime. That's why it's crucial to hire reputable office movers to get the job done right the first time. Our skilled specialists can smoothly and efficiently relocate your office equipment, inventory, and other business items anywhere in New York or the contiguous US.

Moving within Manhattan, Queens or another borough? Our friendly, professional movers can make your next local move a breeze. We know all the best routes and moving methods, so your relocation stays on track and budget.

Though we pride ourselves on being a top local NYC mover, we also excel at long-distance moves. If you're heading out of state, we're ready to help. Talk to one of our knowledgeable sales reps today to start planning your long-distance move.

Packing is a pain, even if you're moving out of a small studio. Instead of wasting your time with a mountain of boxes, leave it to professional movers. We offer partial- and full-packing options to fit your needs and properly care for your fragile items. Relax while we expertly box, load, drop off, and unpack your belongings.

As one of the premier NYC commercial moving services, we know it takes more than just a moving crew and truck to pull off a complicated relocation. Work with one of our skilled moving coordinators to ensure a smooth schedule and transition.

Buying supplies on your own can get expensive. Save money by going with our discounted line of moving supplies. From bubble wrap to boxes, we offer a wide selection of quality packing supplies at low prices.

When dealing with delicate furniture, electronics, and wine collections, it pays to place it in regulated storage. We offer quality storage options with climate control, ensuring consistent temperature and humidity levels to safeguard your possessions from irreparable damage.

Whether you need to put a futon into storage or relocate your bulky beds and cabinets, we're equipped to handle all your furniture moving labor needs. Our team can make easy work of disassembling, transporting, and even reassembling your desks, bed frames and any other cumbersome pieces.

What makes our piano moving service stand out? Our topnotch attention to detail and years of experience. From packing preparation to delivery to final destination, we employ every measure to protect your piano. Whether you own a concert grand or upright, our team will take extra special care of your cherished musical instrument.

We understand the importance of your valuable electronics and use only the highest quality packing materials to ensure their safe transport inside a high quality cardboard box. Our team of trained professionals will handle your TV with care and precision, providing a seamless and stress-free moving experience.

Preparing for your move can help ensure a smooth and stress-free transition. Here are some tips to help you get started:

While our NYC movers take every precaution to ensure a safe and successful move, our movers are still human and accidents can happen in New York. If your belongings are damaged during the move, here's what you should do:

We recommend scheduling your move as soon as you know your desired moving date. This allows us to reserve your preferred moving date and time, and gives us plenty of time to plan and prepare for your move. During peak New York moving seasons, such as summer and weekends, it's best to schedule your moving service at least 4-6 weeks in advance to ensure availability. For long distance moves, it's best to schedule 2 months in advance. However, we understand that last-minute moves can happen, and we'll do our best to accommodate your needs whenever possible.

We provide a range of high-quality packing materials to ensure the safe and secure transport of your belongings. Our packing materials include:

We also offer specialty packing materials for unique items such as electronics, antiques, and artwork. Our team will work with you to determine the best packing materials for your specific needs, and can even provide professional packing services if you prefer to leave the packing to the experts. Contact us today to learn more about our packing materials and services.

We understand that some items require extra care and attention during the moving process. That's why our team takes special care to handle fragile or valuable items with the utmost care and precision. Here's how we, as a moving company, handle these items:

moves or who require longer-term storage. Our storage solutions are secure, climate-controlled, and monitored 24/7 to ensure the safety and protection of your belongings. We offer flexible storage options to meet your needs, whether you require short-term or long-term storage. Our team will work with you to determine the best storage solution for your specific needs and can even arrange for the pickup and delivery of your stored items.

Page: East Harlem Movers' Neighborhood Guide & Infographic

Giving you the inside scoop on all the neighborhoods in New York!

East Harlem ranks as Manhattan's 10th most populous neighborhood, and just under 120,000 people call this slice of Manhattan home. Also known as Spanish Harlem or El Barrio, this Manhattan neighborhood has one of the largest Latino communities in NYC. Originally settled by a mix of European immigrants, Hispanics began moving into the area shortly after World War I. Hailing from Puerto Rico, Cuba, the Dominican Republic, and Mexico, these new residents brought with them their culture and food, which is reflected in the neighborhood's bodegas, old-school Mexican bakeries, and colorful Puerto Rican music.

The architecture in East Harlem is just as diverse as the people that live here; upscale new buildings like the newly-constructed East 126, stand next to pre-war apartments and brownstones. Most of East Harlem's residents are renters, and the relatively low cost of housing makes East Harlem one of Manhattan's rising neighborhoods.

East Harlem is located between 5th Avenue and the East River, north of E. 96th Street and south of the Harlem River. The East River Waterfront Esplanade (also known as the Bobby Wagner Walk), is a narrow walking area that hugs the East River, offering joggers and dog walkers a place to breath in some fresh air with water views. It's incredibly easy to get around East Harlem on foot, by bike, or by public transit – East Harlem gets excellent marks in all these categories. In addition to bus routes, three subway lines serve the neighborhood: the Lexington Avenue Express on the 4 and 5 lines, the Lexington Avenue Local on the 6, and the Second Ave./Broadway Express on the Q.

The sights in East Harlem combine city history with natural beauty. The Museum of the City of New York examines and presents the city in an ever-changing rotation of exhibits. El Museo del Barrio is the only museum dedicated to Latino, Caribbean, and Latin American cultures in the Big Apple. Thomas Jefferson Park is named after the Founding Father and scribe of the Declaration of Independence. It's a small park, but local runners love circling its track, and East Harlem kids come here to play on the swings and slides in the playground. Thomas Jefferson Park also has an outdoor pool that's open in the summer.

The Harlem Meer occupies the top northeastern corner of Central Park along the neighborhood's western border. The Meer has a meandering shoreline that's good for a leisurely walk in the afternoon. There are also plenty of outdoor activities available including catch-and-release fishing, swimming during the warm months, and skating in the winter. Close by; the Conservatory Garden is one of Central Park's relatively lesser-known gems showcasing a mix of French and English gardening styles, dominated by an impressive jet fountain on the western side.

When they're not relaxing at the Harlem Meer or experiencing a new exhibition at El Museo del Barrio, East Harlem locals are chowing down at some of the neighborhood's best restaurants. Rao's is a neighborhood treasure that's been around for over 100 years. The reservation list is notoriously hard to get on, but once you're in, locals say, the challenge is well worth it: Rao's meatballs and seafood salad are just two of the top picks. East Harlem's history of Italian immigrants is also on display at Patsy's Pizzeria, located on 1st Avenue. Locals recommend trying the original coal-fired pizza. On date night, locals and their sweethearts turn up at D'Amore, a wine bar with a relaxed, romantic vibe. The grilled octopus is a bestseller, and for dessert, try the chocolate lava cake. The live music and open kitchen at Ricardo Steak House make it an East Harlem favorite for birthday parties and other gatherings. The portions are generous, and locals say the hospitality is too. Ricardo Steak House offers ten different cuts of meat and an outdoor patio year-round. Cascalote Latin Bistro is a family-owned restaurant where locals come to get their fix of Latin flavor – favorite dishes include the shrimp tacos and skirt steak. The place can get busy, so a reservation is recommended.

Whether it's after a day of work or on the weekend, East Harlem residents love to get their sweat on. Gyms in the neighborhood offer a range of exciting ways to make fitting in a workout class something to look forward to.

Steep Rock Bouldering is a state-of-the-art climbing facility with intro classes for those who are new to the sport, as well as private instruction for people who are ready for a more challenging climb. Women's World of Boxing is a brand-new boxing gym founded by Reese Scott, a veteran boxing instructor. It's the first women-only boxing gym in Harlem, offering a space to let women learn how to fight without the intimidation they typically experience at other gyms. The gym is also dedicated to providing mentoring programs for teen girls.

The CrossFit craze shows no sign of slowing down at CrossFit Metropolis, located at 156 East 100th St. The gym has been around since 2009 and is one of the oldest CrossFit facilities in NYC. Savitri Yoga might have yoga in the name, but it offers a variety of other types of classes, too, like Pilates and Latin dance cardio. Those looking for a completely different type of workout will find their home at Sword Class NYC, a facility dedicated to teaching both eastern and western sword styles. The facility places an emphasis on mutual respect, discipline, and safe sword handling. They offer classes for both kids and adults.

The plethora of coffee shops available in East Harlem shows that when it comes to coffee, East Harlem residents know their brews. Dear Mama Coffee is a great place to work on that novel or meet up with a friend; locals say it's got a chill vibe that's perfect for socializing or working. Love Café places its emphasis on breakfast fare: locals stop in for an egg and cheese sandwich on their way to catch the subway. Uptown Roasters roasts their coffee locally right in East Harlem. Locals can't get enough of the pastries at La Tropezienne Bakery – sometimes there's a line out the door for their fresh-baked bread. The atmosphere at Harlem Blues Cafe is one reason why locals come here for a cup of coffee at the end of the day; they say the staff is quiet and friendly.

When the day winds down, you'll find East Harlem residents meeting up with friends at the neighborhood's bars. East Harlem has plenty of options for grabbing a drink. El Kallejon is a hidden gem for locals in the know – its authentic Mexican cuisine and drinks menu keeps them coming back. The Lexington Social is a friendly tapas and wine bar with an atmosphere that's both intimate and lively.

The Guthrie Inn might be a small place, but locals say their drinks menu packs a punch; bartenders at the Guthrie Inn are serious about the cocktails they make. Next door, the owners of the Guthrie Inn also operate Earl's Bar and Cheese, where locals rave about the beer cheese dip and grilled cheese sandwiches. On Lexington Avenue and 107th Street, the East Harlem Bottling Co. is a fun place to grab a local brew and a meal. This spacious restaurant serves up lunch, brunch, and dinner, and even has outdoor seating when the weather's nice!

My favorite thing about East Harlem is Maggie's Magic Garden on 100th and Lex. Maggie grows award winning vegetables year after year with the help of volunteers like myself and her son Sergio. She is a gem!" – Matthew Moran, Owner – CrossFit Metropolis

What I love most about East Harlem is the community. El Barrio is where people greet one another, they know your name, they know your business and when they stop in to let you know that they appreciate you bringing your business to the neighborhood, that is everything!" – Reese Scott, Coach & Owner – Women's World of Boxing

Teaching an eclectic mix of people has been the most delightful part of my experience in this neighborhood. East Harlem is such a gem. It matches so well with what I think Savitri stands for – versatility, truthfulness, integrity and acceptance for other humans- regardless of ethnicity, gender or preferences. My goal has always been to provide a safe space for people to grow a movement practice in, without pressure or feeling the need to fit in. I couldn't think of a better place to do that than East Harlem." – Jessica Cadden Osborne, Owner/Operator – Savitri NYC

We love the community and how diverse it is. We've been here for 25 years and have made so friends with our customers and our community." – Durinda Underwood, Director of Marketing – La Tropezienne Bakery

We have lived in the neighborhood for over a decade, and we love the diversity and the small community feel." – Leo, Owner – East Harlem Bottling Co.

Limited or non-existent street parking, fifth-floor walkups, and bossy landlords can all make moving to East Harlem challenging. If you're looking for a professional moving service to manage the moving logistics for you, call Imperial Movers. We are the top movers in NYC and have been providing trustworthy moving and storage services to Manhattan for over a decade. We assist with both residential and commercial moves and have storage solutions for both short- and long-term needs. We'll make sure your move to East Harlem goes smoothly, from the moment you request a quote to when your last box is unpacked. Give us a call today to get started!

While we're waiting for the world to be paperless, there are still plenty of necessary paper documents taking up room in file cabinets, document boxes, and desk drawers. Clear up office space or declutter your home with Imperial's offsite document storage solutions. Practical for both business and personal storage needs, Imperial's secure, dry, and climate-controlled storage facilities offer convenience and ease. Select a storage unit that works for your needs, whether it's a small storage locker for a handful of document boxes or a larger unit capable of accommodating a few hundred boxes. Storage is an affordable way to preserve important documents without crowding precious space in your home or business. Imperial Self Storage offers low monthly rental rates and FREE pickup by professional movers from anywhere in NYC.

Your dedicated and trusted household movers in NYC.

Whether you live in a charming studio in SoHo or a penthouse on the Upper East Side, you know that planning a relocation in New York City has its challenges. Congested streets, difficult landlords, tricky building rules, and other relocation hurdles unique to New York can turn an already stressful moving day into a nightmare. Turning your move over to a professional licensed and insured NYC mover can alleviate most of your moving woes and headaches.

From walk-ups to brownstones to buildings with doormen, no New York City residence is beyond the scope of our moving services. We're happy to provide reliable service to customers across all five boroughs, no matter where they call home. Here are just some of the ways we can assist with your move:

From start to finish, you can expect a superior level of professionalism from Imperial Moving and Storage. Part of that professionalism means showing up when we promise to. Our residential moving crews live here, so they know all the ins and outs of navigating the city. With NY's traffic and crowded streets, this knowledge is essential to ensuring your move stays on track. If you are moving within Manhattan, Queens, Brooklyn, Bronx or Staten Island, you can rest assured that our movers know the best route for a timely arrival. Based on our years of local moving experience, we provide customers with accurate quotes for local moves at affordable hourly rates.

Though Imperial Moving and Storage is a local, New York moving company, we also perform long distance and cross country moves. We're a US DOT licensed mover with the manpower and fleet of trucks to execute your interstate relocation. So, if you are looking to move to or from New Jersey, Connecticut, Washington DC, Massachusetts, Florida, or another part of the contiguous US, just let us know. Our sales representatives are ready to help you plan your out-of-state or cross-country relocation.

As a full-service moving company, Imperial Moving & Storage provides our customers with everything they need for a successful move. This service includes packing, unpacking, moving services, and storage. Let our staff and movers customize your moving experience.

Even if you live in a small apartment, getting everything boxed and ready for moving day takes considerable effort. If you're running out of time or unsure of the best strategy for tackling this part of the moving process, give our team a call. Imperial Moving and Storage offers full- and partial-packing solutions to make your life easier during this transition. We'll bring premium boxes and other packing supplies to your home and carefully wrap your belongings for you. When we drop off your load, we can also help with unboxing your items, so you don't spend weeks living in a sea of unopened boxes.

Need a hand transporting your living room furniture to your next apartment or getting that couch into storage? Imperial Moving and Storage is equipped to handle all your residential furniture moving needs. Our team will disassemble pieces as necessary and wrap each one, so they remain damage-free throughout the move. We can also help with tasks like reassembling your bedframes or putting your Ikea desk back together.

In addition to moving services, we also serve NYC with affordable storage solutions. Request on-demand pick-up for our secure warehouse facilities or inquire about our self-storage units located throughout the New York area. Streamlining storage with your moving services simplifies your entire relocation experience.

We know you have lots of choices when it comes to selecting a moving company in New York City. Here are just some of the reasons to let us handle your relocation:

The managers, crews, and sales team at Imperial Moving and Storage have years of experience in the industry. We can answer all your questions and ensure we take all the necessary steps, so you have a smooth relocation.

We are a full-service relocation company, which means we can handle your move from start to finish. Count on us to manage every aspect of your move, whether you're relocating a student's studio in the Village or a 100-employee Midtown office.

Website: www.imperialmovers.com

We will tailor the move according to your needs and specifications. Upon request, we can fully pack and unpack for you, provide boxes and packing materials, and do anything else that you need to ensure a stress-free moving day.

Imperial Moving and Storage is also a long-distance relocation company, licensed by the U.S. Department of Transportation. With these credentials, we can help you relocate you to any state in the country, from the East Coast to the West Coast.

Most of our clientele reaches us through referrals, which means we have lots of happy customers. Be sure to check out our reviews!

You have the option of receiving a flat rate for your move upon request. This pricing option makes budgeting for your relocation simple and straightforward.

A secure and temperature-controlled storage facility is available for your use and convenience.

Imperial Moving and Storage attracts the best relocation professionals in the city due to our attractive employee benefits. We believe that securing top talent translates to a better experience for our customers.

We are proud to present project, “Imperial Donations,” a unique community service outreach that helps you donate your slightly used items to charities across NYC. We’ll pick up these items during your move and drop them off at a donation center near you, free of charge.

Imperial Moving and Storage maintains $2 million worth of General Liability insurance, as well as required Workers’ Compensation insurance coverage. Many residential and commercial office buildings in New York

Making Moving Easier Since 2006.

Imperial Moving & Storage is a fully licensed, insured, and bonded moving company. Whatever your needs, we provide a seamless moving experience to Los Angeles that will relieve your stress (and take it easy on your wallet, too).

Moving to LA from New York City or New Jersey? Imperial Moving & Storage is here to help! Cross-country relocation can be a big battle. You need the right moving company in your corner. Affordable, reliable, and professional, we're ready to help you start this new chapter with minimum hassle.

Even if you're moving out of a smaller place, you deserve a stress-free option. But it'll cost a lot, right? Wrong! We make it super simple (and cheap) to move out of or into a one-bedroom apartment, studio, or micro loft. If you're ready to relocate, get a hold of us for your small-load moving needs.

Staring at a household filled with furniture? Yeah, just thinking about it probably hurts your back. With our furniture shipping service, we literally take the strain off your shoulders. Let us take care of everything – disassembly, packing, loading, storage, and even set up at your new place.

LA is a long trip from NYC. If you have a piano or organ, you might be a little (or more than a little) nervous about moving it. No need to worry. You can breathe a sigh of relief with our piano movers. We'll take every precaution to transport your treasured instrument to its new home safely.

Need to relocate fine art or antiques from a home, office, or gallery? Don't leave your precious collection in amateurish hands. If you're in search of white-glove handling, look no further. We offer consummate art shipping services, from non-abrasive packing and crating to climate-controlled storage.

Whether you're a homeowner, renter, or business owner, you probably need short-term or long-term storage. We provide clean, secure, and climate-controlled storage space for extra belongings, furniture, and more. Experience the difference with the perfect storage solution at an attractive price.

Let's face it – packing stinks. And, even if you're one of the rare people who enjoys it, you may not have the time or energy. Whatever the reason, if you need some help in this department, we have you covered. Our skilled packers and movers can prep a few fragile items or all of your possessions – wrap, pad, box, load, unload, and unpack!

Moving into a new house or apartment in LA? Congratulations! Now, the moving part. What makes us stand out? We add that extra personalized touch our customers greatly appreciate. Enjoy a secure, careful, and quick residential relocation with the friendly professional movers at Imperial Moving & Storage.

Whether you're transplanting your entire business or opening a new retail space in the Los Angeles area, you can't afford unnecessary delays or downtime. Focus on what counts – your business – while our highly trained and knowledgeable commercial movers take care of the logistics and transport.

Feeling the pressure right now? We know how you feel. There can be several reasons for a sudden move – dream job, fresh start, budding relationship. When facing a last-minute or emergency move, you're not alone. Contact us today. We're here to assist you during this hectic time.

Along with an assortment of quality moving services, Imperial Moving & Storage also offers convenient access to and delivery of moving supplies. No more dealing with the pain of sourcing boxes and the like yourself. Start on the right foot with one of our reasonably priced moving supply packages.

Page: Greenwich Village Movers' Neighborhood Guide & Infographic

Giving you the inside scoop on all the neighborhoods in New York!

Greenwich Village, including the West Village and the Meatpacking District, is home to over 67,000 New Yorkers. According to NYC census data, when combined with SoHo and Battery Park City, this area ranks as the 6th largest neighborhood in Manhattan. The Village has a rich history and contemporary cultural relevance. Initially settled by the Dutch, Greenwich Village has since been home to artists' movements, folk-rock bands, and anti-war demonstrations.

As its name suggests, the Meatpacking District was formerly a center for meatpacking and butcher shops. After supermarkets changed meat distribution, the Meatpacking District entered a decline in the 1960s. In the 1980s, however, the neighborhood saw revitalization as developers repurposed its buildings as nightclubs and it transformed into a mecca for nightlife. Today, the Meatpacking District has a unique urban cool factor that builds on its rich history.

Despite rising home costs, the Village works hard to maintain the Bohemian flare for which it's known. About 65% of people rent, and numerous historic preservation groups work to preserve the area's historical sites. Real estate professionals, artists, finance types, and NYU students all give the area distinct character.

Located on the southwestern edge of Manhattan, Greenwich Village extends from the Hudson River to Bowery St. on one side and W. 14th St. and W. Houston St. on the other. Whether you prefer walking, biking, or taking public transit, it's easy to get around the neighborhood and to the rest of the city. Greenwich Village receives a 100/100 score for walking and public transportation. In addition to bus service, over six subway lines run through the neighborhood, including the Broadway-7th Ave. Local, the 6th Ave. Express, and the 14th St.-Canarsie Local.

Greenwich Village has several historical and culturally relevant landmarks. Washington Square Park is immediately recognizable for the Washington Square Arch, as well as the number of street performers and entertainers that perform here. In the summer, both residents and tourists enjoy playing chess at the park's free chess tables. Located nearby, New York University, one of Manhattan's leading research universities, has several academic buildings and dorms that overlook the park. At the far reaches of the neighborhood, the Whitney Museum of American Art boasts an extensive collection of contemporary and modern American art. At the Hudson River Park, located on the North River, residents come to walk their dogs, catch a free movie, or learn how to fish.

When they're not lounging in Washington Square Park or taking in a gallery show at the Whitney Museum, you'll spot locals getting a bite to eat at one of the neighborhood's many restaurants.

Residents descend on L'Artusi for special occasions. Since portions are tapas-size, this Italian eatery recommends getting 2-3 dishes per person. Pair favorites like the Roasted Mushroom and the famed Spaghetti, with garlic, chilies, and parmesan, with a selection from the restaurant's extensive and exquisite wine list.

Less than half a mile away, Taïm serves what locals say is "on point" falafel. Chef Einant, who hails from Tel Aviv, knows a thing or two about transforming chickpeas into a delectable entree. The lunch lines out the door serve as a testament to just how tasty this neighborhood gem is.

Locals say you can't go to Minetta Tavern, a French bistro on Macdougall Street, without trying their black label burger. It's "juicy" and "flavorful," with an ample helping of French fries on the side.

For milestone events, like a significant wedding anniversary or birthday, residents trust Gotham Bar and Grill, a Greenwich village “institution.” This restaurant opened in 1984 and has since scooped up several prestigious designations, including a one-star Michelin rating, three James Beard Awards, and five 3-star reviews from the New York Times.

If it’s brunch you’re craving, residents trust Extra Virgin to deliver classics like banana French toast in a warm, friendly setting. For lunch and dinner, Extra Virgin serves up a variety of Mediterranean-style dishes, like the lemon crusted Chilean sea bass and butternut squash ravioli.

To maintain appearances, Greenwich Village locals turn to the area’s plethora of excellent gyms to stay in shape. Founded by Radan Sturm, a veteran fitness instructor, Liftonic features group weight- and strength-training classes. 305 Fitness, named after Miami’s area code, is known for its signature cardio class, in which a live DJ mixes beats while you sweat through an hour of high-intensity dance moves. Locals head to CLAY Health Club + Spa to unwind with one of their many Pilates classes or get serious with a personal trainer; after classes, they grab a bite to eat at the in-house cafe. Work Train Fight is a boxing club with a supportive atmosphere and dedicated coaches. Locals come here to give their workouts variety and get inspired. CityRow is much more than rowing: each class combines work on a rowing machine with interval training for a low-impact, full-body workout.

Greenwich Village is known for its coffee as much as it is for fantastic food. Whether as a morning wakeup call or midafternoon caffeine boost, there are plenty of choices. Stumptown Coffee Roasters emphasizes quality, taste, and bean sourcing for a full-bodied cup of joe. True to its name, Bosie Tea Parlor offers over 100 loose-leaf varieties of tea in a sweet little storefront. Kobrick Coffee, in the heart of the Meatpacking District, serves artisan coffee by day and cocktails by night. Bluestone Lane has gluten-free food options to go with its selection of coffees; locals recommend trying the avocado toast or quinoa breakfast bowl. For serious doughnut cravings, locals descend on The Doughnut Project, which offers unconventional doughnut flavors to suit every taste.

When the sun sets, and the night begins, locals head to Greenwich Village's top bars to mingle with friends, have a beer with coworkers, or meet up for a date. Amélie is a neighborhood pick for date night; it has a cozy, romantic atmosphere – think candlelight and French-speaking waiters – and a good wine list. If the evening calls for cocktails, Little Branch answers the call, with handcrafted drinks and dedicated bartenders. Employees Only boasts a real working fireplace in the back, a knowledgeable and friendly bar staff, and a psychic that greets you at the door. Locals come to Upright Brew House to have a beer with colleagues in a relaxed setting; there is a rotating list of craft beers, many of them seasonal, and three pinball machines. Arts and Crafts Beer is both “distinguished” and “cozy,” and has a community feeling that keeps many locals coming back.

We love the energy of the neighborhood which is filled with fun locals and tourists from all over the world.”

– Leslie Polizzotto, Co-Founder – The Doughnut Project

What we love: The diversity of the neighborhood and the rich history of art and music.” – Don Borelli, Owner

– Arts and Crafts Beer Parlor

Some of the friendliest people in New York live in Greenwich Village. We feel very fortunate to have the opportunity to get to know all the locals and share our love of unique craft beers with them.” – Daniel

Does your business need room to grow? Our commercial storage solutions provide all of the space you need for storing files and other documents, holding excess inventory and supplies, or keeping unused office furniture and equipment. Renting storage space is much cheaper than renting additional commercial space, making this the most affordable way to expand your business. Our storage facilities are the perfect way to declutter your office or retail space so you can make room for additional headcount or simply get more organized.

We serve business customers in a variety of industries:

Our commercial storage solutions give you the flexibility to choose from self-storage or on-demand options. Either way, you have the assurance of knowing your business assets and documents are safe in one of our secure, climate-controlled facilities.

If there's one thing New York City has plenty of, it's public transportation. Between bus routes and subway lines, there's really no need to ever drive a car while you're in the City. Even if you're in a hurry, you can always hail a cab or call an Uber. If you're like most, you probably enjoy the reprieve from driving, traffic, and paying exorbitant prices for parking, but if you need occasional access to a vehicle, what do you do with it in the meantime? Imperial Storage offers long-term vehicle storage in our secure facilities to accommodate everything from classic cars to the late model you've been driving since college. Our monthly rates are just a fraction of what you'd pay to park your wheels somewhere in the City, plus our facilities are safe, with 24/7 monitoring. Now you have an affordable and convenient solution for your NYC vehicle storage needs.

Whether you're changing neighborhoods, states, or countries, relax and we'll completely take care of the moving process. Our professional NYC Movers will help get you moved quickly!

We are experts in commercial relocation be it office, non for profit organization, retail stores, educational institutions and more. Officially certified to provide the utmost professional level of service; Imperial provides assurance that the entire process will be completed to maximize efficiency and minimize downtime.

Have extra furniture or merchandise? Imperial Movers can safely store any objects for you, no matter the size. Our facilities offer both short-term accessibility and long-term warehouse storage.

Envisioning a perfect efficient move? When you decide to contact Imperial Movers you will consult live with an agent experienced with moving customers in your same neighborhood or area, Contact Imperial Movers for the established pinnacle of stress-free total moving service. Our employees are the best in the business; our employees are paid higher than any old man with a van, ensuring our priority of quality in all we do. We can be reached by phone or email and will respond promptly and clearly to any submitted request or question

Imperial Moving offers clear and precise estimates for a complete moving package, with zero hidden fees or nickle-and-diming. Upon request we offer a flat rate quote for the entire process. We will set a date and time in advance for our trucks to arrive at your origin point to pick up your luggage.

Moving can be complicated; we recommend keeping packed objects consolidated and organized by room, as well as packing bags for luggage to be transported separately. The night before the move, confirm that the materials are organized and labeled – and then relax; we will efficiently take care of the entire packing process the following day. We offer an additional packing service; we will wrap and package every object of your luggage for transportation, so you don't have to lift a finger. Rest assured that your move will not only be handled by an experienced foreman but that the home office will be available to address any issues that arise.

On the day of your relocation, our moving team will wrap all of your furniture and any loose fragile items will be boxed. After documenting all objects being moved, the movers provide you with an inventory form, and load all objects for transportation. We will provide a specific delivery time and wait for your arrival at your new home. Also, Imperial Moving and Storage dispatchers will never send out a crew without previous instructions of how to drive to each location. This is all to ensure that the move itself will be done as quickly and efficiently as possible.

Unpacking is a fast process; our movers will unload all packed objects, assemble furniture such as bed frames or tables, and provide you with delivery receipts. Once fully moved in, payment can be processed via cash, credit, or check. Contact Us Today: Imperial Moving and Storage 83 Washington Place New York, NY 10011

Transporting artwork is inherently risky, as transit exposes pieces to the threat of getting broken, scratched, smudged, or worse if mishandled. Since art is more susceptible to damage than most items in your home or office, it's imperative for you to enlist the assistance of professionals when shipping or moving it. Imperial Moving and Storage offers the following professional art moving services in New York City:

We will work with you to determine the optimal packing solution for each unique piece based on its composition and size. This solution may include using one or more of the following proven methods:

Just as we do with every move, we will treat your fine art with the utmost care, as if it was our own. From marking the boxes and crates with the appropriate labels to indicate their contents, to taking extra precautions when loading the truck, we'll take every step necessary to ensure the safe transport of your artwork and sculptures. Whether you're moving artwork from Chelsea to the Upper East Side or from Manhattan to another state, Imperial Movers will get the job done.

Imperial Moving and Storage is pleased to offer our customers affordable storage services at one of our climate-controlled facilities in New York City. Storing art in a climate-controlled space is essential to protect it from potential damage caused by heat, cold, humidity, and other elements. Additionally, you'll have peace of mind knowing your valuable artwork is tucked away in a secure, state-of-the-art facility with 24/7 security monitoring and surveillance.

Americans have approximately six billion paintings, photographs, sculptures, and other fine works of art adorning their walls and halls, according to Robert Klonoski, a contributor to artbusiness.com. When it comes time to relocate, these art collections require special care. It's advisable that you hire a professional relocation service, like Imperial Moving & Storage, that is accustomed to handling fine art, especially if your collection contains large sculptures or particularly delicate artworks.

If, however, you choose to do some or all of the packing and transportation yourself, here are some tips you should consider when doing so:

Because your fine art collection is valuable both regarding its cost and its sentimental value to you, be sure to protect it with insurance before your move. Survey your art collection, inventory it, and make a note of any existing damage, so you'll know if the damage occurred during the relocation. Then, follow the tips and trick above to safely move your collection from one home to the next. If you'd rather entrust your artwork to a skilled and knowledgeable New York moving company, give Imperial Moving and Storage a call! We have the skillset, tools, and equipment to pack, move, and deliver your art with ease. Request your free quote now!
